New Benefits Set for Poor

$16 Baby Bonus After Means Test

OTTAWA (CP) — Low-income families, the aged, widows with young children and the disabled will benefit from a welfare structure shuffling proposed today.

The changes would involve spending about $1 billion more by 1973-74 than is spent now but this would be raised by taxing allowances now tax-free and by raising individual contributions to contributory programs.

The proposals came in the government white paper on income security tabled in the Commons.

Old Age Supplements Up $23.17

It also would make family allowances taxable and pay them on a sliding scale from a top of $16 a month for each child of a family with income of $4,500 or less down to $5 a month for each child of a family with $9,501 to $10,000.

For families above $10,000, there would be no payment, marking a major shift of the current family allowance system which pays up to $8 a month for each child depending on age.

This new family income security plan would take effect in September, 1971.

The 59,000-word white paper tabled by Health Minister John Munro also gave full details of higher payments to the aged which the government announced late last week.

The basic old age pension payable to everyone at age 65 rises to $80 a month, effective next Jan. 1, from the present $75, fattened this year to $79.58 by a cost-of-living bonus.

In future, it will not reflect rising living costs except for those who also receive the guaranteed income supplement.

At present 1.6 million persons receive the old age pension and 880,000 get both pension and supplement. Under the proposals, about 1.3 million will get both.

Effective in April, 1971, the supplement rises to a maximum of $55 a month from the present $31.83. A maximum two per cent escalation for cost-of-living increases takes effect April 1, 1972, for those who get both the basic old age pension and the supplement.

Other Income Limited to $24

To qualify for the maximum supplement, a single old age pensioner may have other income of no more than $24 a year. The amount of supplement declines in stages to $1 for those with other income between $1,296 and $1,320.

For married pensioners, the supplementary maximum is $47.50 where their combined other income is no more than $48. It drops to 50 cents on a sliding scale where income is between $2,256 and $2,304.

The changes affecting the aged mean that a married couple with no other income will receive a maximum of $255 a month and a single person $135 a month after April, 1971.

If the system continued unchanged, the married couple next year would have received $227.22 and the single person $113.61.

The white paper says the federal government also will give the required three years notice this year of proposed changes in the Canada Pension Plan to raise the ceiling on which contributions are levied and, ultimately, the benefits.

The aim is to have benefits of $162 a month in 1977 by gradually raising the salary ceiling on which contributions are levied to $7,800 a year.

The current contributions are 1.8 per cent of salary between $600 and $5,300 for employees, matched by the employers. The self-employed contribute 3.6 per cent.

At current contributions rates, the pension in 1977 would be nearly $123 a month.

Boost For Disabled Pensioners

Disabled pensioners would get a boost to a top of $199 a month starting in January, 1973, from $114 under present requirements. By 1977, it would be $249 a month.

Wives of disabled pensioners would qualify for the first time —for a maximum $80 a month.

The widows pension would rise to a maximum $170 a month by 1973 from $71, and to $208 by 1977 if contributions had been made for three years at the top amount.

The Canada Pension Plan changes would require sanction of two-thirds of the provinces containing two-thirds of the population. In effect, that means the consent of Quebec, Ontario and five other provinces in order to keep the separate Canada and Quebec Pension Plans compatible.

Discussion will come at next January's federal-provincial conference of welfare ministers. So will talks on a number of changes Ottawa wants made in welfare programs of the provinces to which federal money is contributed under the Canada Assistance Plan.

The white paper lists a variety of issues to be raised such as entitlement to welfare, work incentives, adequate benefits, appeals procedures, information for welfare recipients and such services as day-care, homemaker,

WE STAND OR FALL ON REFORMS—PM

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday his government will stand or fall on the reception given by the public to reforms outlined in the welfare white paper released today.

He said the federal government believes the country is mature enough to accept social reforms aimed at taking money from the rich to help the poor but "we could be put out of office" by an adverse reception. (See full story on Page 2.)

Dissatisfaction, he said, could come from the rich and middle-income brackets claiming too much was being taken from them while the poor could complain they weren't getting enough.

Berlin Meet Disputed

BERLIN (AP) — The West Berlin Christian Democratic party met in West Berlin today, their session disputed by the Communists and endorsed by the Western allies.

Former chancellor Kurt Georg Kiessinger, also his party's chairman in opposition, told a news conference that the presidium and parliament faction of his party had a right to meet here.

In an unprecedented trip near midnight into East Berlin, the U.S., British and French ministers in West Berlin, told the Russians it was Communist harassment of highway traffic into Berlin that raised tensions and not the Christian Democratic meeting.

Further, the Western ministers said, the East German actions concerning Berlin access jeopardized the Big Four meetings on Berlin. They resume next week.

SOVIETS PROTEST

The diplomatic exchange began when Pyotr Abrassimove, the Soviet ambassador to East Germany and Soviet representative in the Berlin talks, sent his Western counterparts a note protesting the Christian Democratic meetings.

East-West tensions in the present situation sharpened Saturday when the East Germans began harassing overland traffic to West Berlin.

This continued today, although by afternoon most border crossing points reported "normal" conditions. Truck drivers led reported having to wait as long as 10 hours for clearance.

Earlier ADN, the official East German news agency, and Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper in Moscow, reported that party and government leaders of the Soviet bloc will meet in East Berlin, probably later this week.

Plane Attacks North Vietnam Emplacement

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. fighter-bomber made another "self-defence" attack on North Vietnam early today, hitting an anti-aircraft position 5½ miles north of the demilitarized zone before the gun emplacement could fire on the plane.

Informed sources said the pilot of the F-105 Thunderchief learned from his electronic detection gear that he was being tracked by ground radar and that it had begun computing the point at which to fire.

A U.S. communique said the attack was "protective reaction against an enemy radar-controlled anti-aircraft position" and that "protective reaction is the inherent right of self-defence."

It was the first U.S. air attack on North Vietnam reported in a week, since the heavy raids Nov. 21-22. In all previous air attacks on North Vietnam since the bombing halt two years ago, the United States claimed it was retaliating against attacks on American reconnaissance planes.

BROADENED PROTECTION

But after the raids last weekend, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird broadened protective reaction to include protection for pilots flying strikes against North Vietnamese supply routes through Laos to Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Doctor Faces 2 Charges In Port Alberni Court

Dr. Glen Stewart was on his way to Port Alberni this morning to face two charges in provincial court.

He is charged with possession of stolen property worth more than $50, and with failing to appear in court after being released on $2,500 cash bail for the same charge last month.

Stewart, who was in the Port Alberni area aboard his 35-foot yacht Gypsy last summer, was questioned in San Francisco by RCMP concerning the shooting death of Gordon Kralt, 23, at Pachena Bay near Bamfield.

SUITCASE

He was also questioned by RCMP about the disappearance of Mrs. Sheila Haupt, a nurse, from the Smithers area 10 months ago.

Shortly after Mrs. Haupt's disappearance a suitcase containing some of her belongings was found in the Bulkley River near Smithers.

Stewart had practised as a surgeon at the Smithers hospital and was "highly regarded" in the area, said Gary White, editor of the Smithers Interior News.

Kralt was a caretaker at the isolated Shantyman's Christian Association Bible camp some four miles south of Bamfield.

Swept by Pacific gales and with all other sounds drowned by pounding surf, the Pachena Bay area is deserted at this time of the year.

His body was found Nov. 22, three weeks after he was last seen alive.

Stewart was expected to appear in court Tuesday, but RCMP said he might appear this afternoon.

He and Italian national Maria Trigiani, 31, returned voluntarily from San Francisco Friday night after being held by United States immigration authorities. The woman is not in custody.

The two were rescued from a gas-filled motel room last week by two U.S. immigration inspectors.

FOUR TEENAGERS DIE IN BLAZE

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP) — RCMP today tentatively identified four teen-agers killed in a fire here Sunday, but said positive identification was not possible.

The dead were identified as Laurie Shanks, 14, and Bob Cantlon, 15, both of Fort Nelson, and Karen Brown, 16, and Robert Wyness, 18, both recently of Qualicum Beach on Vancouver Island.

Police said the four apparently were trapped in a duplex which Wyness was renting. The owner of the duplex, Roman List, escaped.

Neighbors who saw the flames turned in the alarm but were unable to get inside the frame building to rescue the four.

The fire ripped through the building's insulation of sawdust and woodchips and had completely destroyed the building within two hours.

Waffle Group Member in Race For New Democrat Leadership

TORONTO (CP) — James Laxer, 29, a leading member of the Waffle group of the New Democratic Party, officially announced his candidacy for the party's federal leadership by calling on English Canadians to form a new alliance with Quebec against American imperialism.

Mr. Laxer, a history lecturer at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., became the third candidate to seek the leadership at the national convention in February. Others are John Harney, former secretary of the Ontario NDP, and Ed Broadbent, member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby.

Mr. Laxer's candidacy was endorsed simultaneously Saturday by meetings across Canada of Waffle groups which support the nationalist policies of Mel Watkins, a University of Toronto economics professor.

Mr. Laxer had to leave for Kingston after his speech to the Toronto meeting to be on hand when his wife, Krista, gave birth to a boy early Sunday.

Other Waffle meetings were held in Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Quebec.

Mr. Laxer said part of the campaign against "American imperialism" would be to recognize the right of self-determination of Quebec "so that the people of Quebec can decide whether they wish to remain in a political union with us."

Buy All U.S. Oil Firms In Canada—Broadbent

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent, candidate for New Democratic Party leadership, said today he would, if prime minister, buy control of the petroleum industry in this country with $3 billion in U.S. funds now being held by the Bank of Canada.

Mr. Broadbent, MP for Oshawa-Whitby, spoke at a news conference to launch his book The Liberal Rip-off.

Among those fighting to succeed T. C. Douglas as NDP leader at a convention next spring, he was the first to announce his candidacy and is the first to outline his platform in a book.

Rip-off, he said, means "to deal with others on the basis of inequality." He added that is "characteristic behavior of the Liberals."

BROADBENT
. . . seeking NDP leadership

Mr. Broadbent says that Liberal and Conservative governments of the last 30 years have been adaptive but have offered no significant change in the status quo.

New Democrats had to post a clear alternative by offering a democratic socialist form of government. He believed Canadians, especially those under 35, are ready to consider seriously such a move.

There was a "clear case for public ownership" of the U.S. dominated petroleum industry in Canada. Mr. Broadbent thought it would be possible to buy control by using $3 billion held by the central bank to maintain the pegged rate of the Canadian dollar.

Nanaimo Hike Ends in Death

A Nanaimo teen-ager died of exposure overnight Saturday after being stranded with five other hikers on the snow-swept slopes of Mount Benson near Nanaimo.

Sixteen-year-old Frank Tolen was reported dead Sunday by a four-man ground party that reached the tiny cabin where the survivors had been trapped by deep snow and freezing temperatures.

A CFB Comox helicopter this morning brought out the five survivors and the search party which had stayed overnight at the cabin.

In good condition after a hospital check-up were Frank's 14-year-old brother Bill, Mike Mathews, 14, and Ron John, 15. Rick John, 16, and Jack Oud, 15, were also in good condition at home.

John and Jack had hiked out through snow and freezing temperatures to alert RCMP about the situation on Mt. Benson.

They met the combined RCMP-Civil Defence search party and returned with them to the cabin.

The six set out Saturday morning to hike the trails on the 3,344-foot mountain some seven miles from Nanaimo, police said.

DEEP SNOW

By nightfall, with temperatures hovering at 30 degrees and three-feet of snow, the youths had reached the 2,500-foot level of the mountain.

At that point Frank asked the party to leave him behind because he was tired.

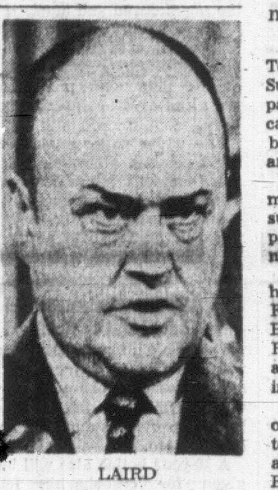
The other youths got their gear to the small hunter's cabin, then returned to carry Frank up to the shelter.

It's not known whether he died before he got to the cabin where there was a fireplace.

They said rescue operations on the ground were hampered by severe conditions and treacherous roads.

The rescue party, which originally set out in a tracked snow vehicle, had to abandon it and proceed for the last mile on foot.

The survivors were all reported at home and sleeping soundly this morning.



LAIRD
. . . misrepresentation?

'Nobody Asked Me'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said today the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was not informed by him about a U.S. air strike in connection with the unsuccessful Son Tay prison camp raid because nobody asked him.

Senator J. William Fulbright (D—Ark.) had accused him of "misrepresenting" facts surrounding the air attack but Laird told newsmen the committee members "were not as prepared as they might be . . . that particular question was not asked."

"I only answer the questions that are asked," he said.

Holiday Truces Set by Cong

SAIGON (Reuter) — The Viet Cong guerrillas said today they would cease fighting in South Vietnam for three days both at Christmas and New Year and for four days at Tet, the lunar new year in late January.

Broadcasting from a secret jungle base, the Viet Cong's Liberation radio said its forces will observe a Christmas truce from 12:01 a.m. Dec. 24 to midnight the night of Dec. 27.

The radio said the Viet Cong will recognize a Western New Year truce from midnight Dec. 30 to midnight Jan. 3 and the Tet truce will run from midnight Jan. 26 to midnight Jan. 30.

But the broadcast made it clear that the Viet Cong would not prolong any of the truces into a permanent ceasefire because the United States has not announced a timetable for withdrawal of all its forces.

'Canada Mature Enough'

By RAY DOUCET

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday the federal government feels the country is mature enough to accept social reforms that aim at taking more money from the rich and giving it to the poor.

Mr. Trudeau told a panel of journalists on the French-language television station CFTM that if his government misjudges the population in this field "we could be put out of office."

Dissatisfaction could come from the rich and middle-income brackets claiming too much was being taken from them while the poor could complain that they were not getting enough.

"We will apply a principle of aiding those in the lower income scales.... We must help those who need it most.

"It will mean taking from the rich to give to the poor. However, it still will not entirely solve our problems since we could tax the rich 100 per cent and still not have enough."

HOUSE WASTING TIME

Mr. Trudeau also showed annoyance at opposition speeches concerning the bill aimed at replacing the War Measures Act. He said present discussion on the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, is wasting valuable Commons time "which can be used for other important tasks such as social welfare."

The prime minister said that a proposed amendment calling for appointment of a special supervisory committee to carry out the principles of the bill is causing a "stupid delay."

It is foolish to even propose this "because Quebec just doesn't want it .... they want to run their own affairs," he said.

"Quebec wants to handle its own situation . . . and I consider that reasonable.

"We can't lose time arguing."

During the one-hour discussion, Mr. Trudeau also said the big drop of investment into Quebec in the last five years was due mainly to the climate of unrest created by terrorist activity.

"I think the drop occurred after the bombs . . . as you know capital is one of the most fluid things in the world.

"If there is insecurity . . . then the social climate has a definite effect on investment." ment)."

OFFER NOT ACCEPTED

Mr. Trudeau also blamed Quebec government inaction for the lack of progress in certain areas of the province, pointing out that a $212-million offer made two years ago by the federal government for development of the Gaspe has not yet been accepted.

"Sadly, since 1968, Quebec had a government which seemed more interested in battling with the federal government . . . and in the meantime it was not making use of what was offered.

"Just about all that money is still waiting to be used."

A 31-year-old man was fined $150 in court Saturday by Judge Harold Alder when he pleaded guilty to driving while his blood-alcohol content was over .08 per cent.

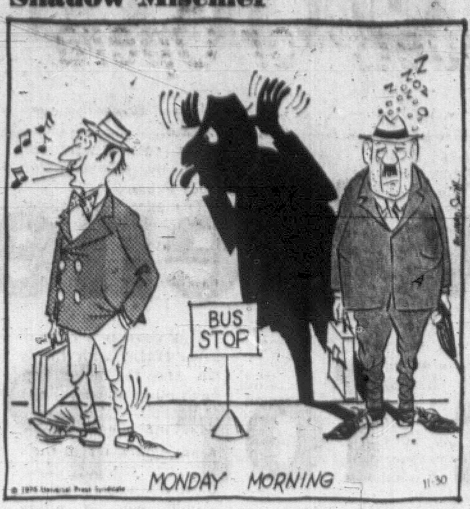
Shadow Mischief



No Help Expected At Welfare Office

City welfare director Alex Davidson said today he does not forsee any increase in social worker staff in the immediate future.

Davidson's comments followed reports that the city's men's division welfare office, 613 Pandora, has had daily backlogs of welfare applicants throughout most of November.

Davidson said the city hired two social workers in July, but "no further increase has been discussed" since.

He said it is important to place demand at the men's division into perspective with similar demand and backlogs at other agencies such as Canada Manpower and the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Caseloads for the four social workers at the men's division are averaging 500 per worker per month.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock was non-committal today when asked whether the city will hire additional staff.

He said he is meeting Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi Wednesday and would discuss "all aspects of welfare" at that time.

Davidson said seasonal unemployment has created high demand for welfare which will persist until more jobs become available.

counselling and manpower referral.

The question of cost-sharing also is tabbed as a matter for the conference. At present, the federal government pays up to half the provincial costs in programs to aid the blind, disabled, and special aid for the unemployed and aged.

The Canada Pension Plan discussions with the provinces also are to explore integration of the plan with provincial workmen's compensation laws.

The white paper says that blind persons allowance, disabled persons allowance and unemployment assistance programs are gradually being replaced as separate entities by the Canada Assistance Plan.

The federal government therefore wants to end cost-sharing for them.

This requires 10 years notice for blind and disabled allowances and one year for unemployment assistance unless the provinces agree on an earlier date.

A 10-year notice also will be given for cost-sharing for special old age assistance which is gradually being replaced by the lowering of qualifying age for old age security to 65.

Another major area of social insurance, unemployment insurance, also will be revised in line with a white paper tabled last June. This would extend coverage, shorten the contribution period before benefits could be drawn and raise the benefit maximums.

Pass Catcher Faces Charge

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Police Chief Forrest Keene of suburban University Park said a charge of indecent exposure was filed Monday against pass receiver Lance Rentzel of the Dallas Cowboys football team.

Keene said the charge was in connection with an incident involving a 10-year-old girl about a week ago. Rentzel appeared voluntarily at the police station Nov. 20 and posted a $1,500 appearance bond.

A police report alleges Rentzel, 27, drove up in his car, talked to the girl, then exposed himself.

Rentzel, who married television star Joey Heatherton in 1969, was in court on a similar charge in 1966 while with Minnesota Vikings. He pleaded guilty and was ordered to seek psychiatric care.

Official Delays Retirement

CANADA BOOSTS AID TO UN RELIEF BODY

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada today pledged $1.35 million in 1971 for the UN Relief and Works Agency which cares for about 1.5 million Palestine Arab refugees.

The sum is an increase of $150,000 over the amount given for 1970.

The new Canadian contribution will consist of $650,000 in cash money and $700,000 in food commodities.

Deputy Canadian Ambassador David Reece mentioned last week that UNRWA expected to be short $5 million this year.

Kennedy could not be reached for comment.

Spoiler Failures Reported Before

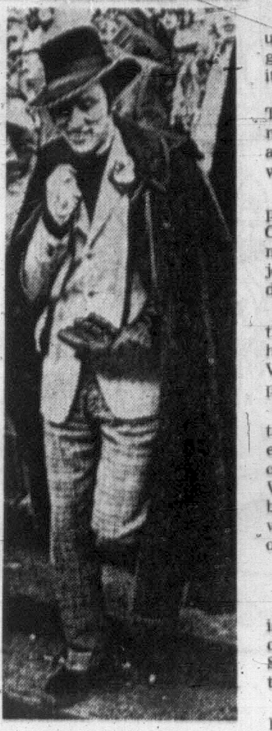
TORONTO (CP) — A federal inquiry was told Monday there were reports of three incidents involving premature deployment of ground spoiler braking systems on Air Canada jetliners in the months preceding the July 5 crash of a passenger aircraft here that killed all 109 persons aboard.

The inquiry, under Mr. Justice Hugh Gibson of the Exchequer Court of Canada, began its second week and heard testimony from Allan Clark, air accident investigator for the federal transport department.

The inquiry was told last week that the spoilers on Flight 621 were deployed manually from the cockpit while the jet was still 60 feet above the runway.

He replied that air crew personnel he interviewed related reports of three separate incidents to him. One involved a DC-8 coming in for a landing at Kingston, Jamaica in 1969.

Orph and Ari Swing — Bouquets for Opera



PRIME MINISTER Pierre Trudeau, wearing what the wags dubbed his Mandrake the Magician costume, slouch hat and cape, steps onto the field in Toronto Saturday to present the Grey Cup to the victorious Montreal Alouettes. (CP Wirephoto.)

By AUDREY JOHNSON

If you're a man who gets uptight when your wife suggests going to the opera, cool it.

Five minutes at Orph's Teach-Inn or Ari's Pad tonight at the Royal Theatre and you'll be with it all the way.

The Canadian Opera Company's version of Offenbach's Orpheus in the Underworld is not only camp, it's convulsive, joyous, luscious and melodious.

If ever there was a show in this city that warranted full houses and SRO signs, this Victoria Symphony-sponsored production is it.

The fact that many seats that are usually filled were empty Sunday was sad because it meant a lot of Victorians had missed the best piece of musical theatre we have seen here for years or are likely to see.

★ ★ ★

Orpheus in the Underworld is not a Verdi or Puccini-type opera, but belongs in the Strauss genre—its near relation could be Fledermaus.

The story of Orpheus following his wife, Eurydice, to Hades in order to restore her to the living world was used by Offenbach as the basis for a wildly satirical spoof of the Greek mythology of Olympus and all its gods.

Musically he embellished it with some of the loveliest, most tuneful writing in all comic opera, including the Bacchanalian whoop-de-do that has become familiar to everyone as the can-can.

Canadian Opera director Herman Geiger-Torel has staged this piece with a tremendous flair for the comic approach, updating it and filling it with non-stop invention and vivid imaginative ideas.

★ ★ ★

We are introduced to Eurydice—Sheila Piercey on Sunday—provicatively Greek-robed and sipping a cocktail under a vivid sun umbrella on the patio between her husband's — Orph's—Teach-In and her lover's—Aari's—pad.

From there we are whirled to Olympus where the gods are busy rebelling against the father of them all, Jupiter, and later to Hades where the cats are really with it and the music sizzles.

The charming music is performed by a cast that ranges from entirely competent to excellent.

In the last category Phil Stark's performance as Orpheus stands out, not only vocally but for the unusual circumstance that as the roly-poly musician who bores wife Eurydice to tears, he also plays his fiddle throughout the production—beautifully.

★ ★ ★

Usual procedure calls for Orpheus to mime while the violin is played from the pit.

Don McManus brings his fine baritone and acting ability to the Jupiter role and Jan Rubes is vocally and comedically superb as the debonair Pluto, god of the underworld.

A great moment musically comes in the last act when Alan Crofoot, as Bacchus, uncovers a glorious tenor sound and depth of feeling in the unexpectedly poignant song of loneliness and wine.

Sheila Piercey's Eurydice had all the eye-appeal one could wish but there are areas in her voice that are thin and flowed by over-much vibrato.

Her role tonight will be sung by alternate soprano, Dodi Protero.

The excellent orchestra under John Fenwick was just a bit heavy for the singers now and then but in general the balance was pleasing.

★ ★ ★

This show is a case of total involvement with the orchestra and the actors spoofing each other and Public Opinion (Elizabeth Mawson) rising from the audience to become a key character in the action.

It is without doubt the musical show of the year and should not be missed by anyone with a taste for the genre.

Tonight's curtain goes up at 8:30 and as for me, I'll be back for more, a rare circumstance indeed.

Albertans Told To Brace Selves

EDMONTON (CP) — The weather office Sunday night warned most Alberta residents to brace themselves for a storm and to be prepared to dig out of five to eight inches of snow during the next 36 hours.

The storm will move in with strong winds and cold temperatures, the public forecaster said in a warning for the Peace, Fort McMurray, Edson, Edmonton, St. Paul, Red Deer, Calgary, Lethbridge, Coronation and Medicine Hat regions.

Up to three inches of new snow had already fallen in the Peace River region.

The tempest was expected to be spawned as a large system now centred in British Columbia and the northwestern United States moved slowly eastward across the province and a mass of cold air over northern Alberta worked its way southward.

UNION WANTS TO WATCH

Nude Scene Assault Charged

LONDON (UPI) — A claim by actresses that they were sexually assaulted while shooting a nude scene at a film studio has prompted a demand from Equity, the actors' union, for the right to supervise the making of all sex scenes in British films.

Five actresses filed complaints with the union after a scene at Pinewood Studios in which they had to walk naked through a group of about 50 male extras. They claimed some of the men pulled them to the ground and manhandled them.

The scene was for the film "The Devils," a story of 17th-century nuns in France. It stars Vanessa Redgrave and Oliver Reed.

"This is the last time that this must be allowed to happen," said Peter Plouviez, assistant general secretary of Equity.

"In the future when films of this nature are being made we shall want an Equity official present during the shooting of sex scenes."

Referring to the actresses' complaints, he said, "Things got out of hand—but we are satisfied that it was not the fault of the producer or director."

SPEC Drops Port Hardy Hearing Bid

The Society for Pollution and Environmental Control has withdrawn efforts to appear before a pollution control board hearing at Port Hardy Wednesday.

The hearing concerns an application from Utah Construction and Mining Co. to dump 9.3 gallons of waste daily into Rupert Inlet from its $74-million copper mine complex.

SPEC, a persistent critic of the plan, had not been accepted as one of four objectors scheduled to appear at Port Hardy. The Cowichan-Malahat branch had threatened legal action to force the pollution control board to hear their objections.

Branch president Kurt Horn said today he now expected the SPEC brief to be heard by the board at a second session of the hearing in Victoria.

"The board realizes its legal position is weak," Horn said. "They have told us there will be a hearing on our appeal (to have the SPEC brief heard later) Dec. 8."

A spokesman for the pollution control branch said today director William Venables would decide after the Port Hardy session whether to continue the hearing in Victoria later.

The board has been attacked repeatedly for its decision to hold the original hearing in the remote north Island community, and to limit the number of objectors hearrd.

DIRECTOR ILL

The Port Hardy hearing originally was scheduled Sept. 16, but was postponed by the illness of the pollution control director.

Objectors to be heard Wednesday are E. R. Morton of Cowichan Station, Elaine Price of Duncan, Roger Prentice of North Vancouver and the Pacific Salmon Society, Vancouver.

The Utah mining complex is nearing completion, with waste-disposal plans based on dumping into the inlet. Production is to begin early next year, with first shipment of copper concentrate scheduled for Japanese buyers in 1972.

A Not So Merry Go-Round

THE UNITED STATES POLICY of partial disengagement abroad, with increased nuclear strength at home, was made plain by U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird in a recent New York address. But the domestic armament program could be tempered by significant success in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with Russia.

The foreign disengagement is not presented as a complete withdrawal of influence or military presence — it is, rather, as has been demonstrated in South Vietnam and urged in Western Europe, a move to build up the partners' contributions in America's defence partnerships. "We shall expect," said Mr. Laird, "other nations to share with us to a greater degree the responsibility, the burdens, and the costs of defence. As this policy of partnership matures, it will mean fewer of our forces will be stationed overseas."

But even with such a development, Mr. Laird foresees little chance of an overall reduction in defence costs. Despite the magnitude of today's spending, he estimates it as being "some $17 billions below that of three years ago" in terms of 1971 purchasing power. Among the causes of budget increase will be "costly new deterrent systems" brought on by Russia's increased production of major long-range nuclear weapons and its growing nuclear submarine fleet. Apparently only SALT agreements, at present hardly beyond the tentative proposal stage, can halt this lethal rivalry.

But more orthodox causes will also play a part in rising defence costs for our neighbor. Military and civilian payrolls in defence have increased enormously: the payroll bill for 1964 was $22 billions compared with a cost for an equivalent number of people today of $32 billions. Modernization of weapons and equipment — "We paid for Vietnam in considerable part by not replacing many obsolescent items" — and a future heavier accent on technology will also send costs upward.

The whole program, of course, is presented as forced on the government "to provide adequate strength for national security." In the present state of the world, this has a mad logic, even though the preparations themselves are a part of the global armament which adds to world insecurity and hence to United States concern. Smaller nations, such as Canada, cannot occupy more than a marginal position in such a tail-chasing arms race. And despite the efforts of the two armed giants, the growing shadow of China on the nuclear scene threatens to alter the whole balance at a still indefinite future date.

On simple pragmatism, and human experience, an armaments trend which foresees indefinitely greater and greater totals of nuclear weaponry by more and more countries can have only one ultimate result. The world should be spending more on avoiding it than on preparing for it.

Don't Let It Become Chronic

IF THE BELIEF OF QUEBEC'S Premier Bourassa that "terrorism is here to stay" is widely held in his province, it helps to explain the apparent willingness of Quebecois to support the proposal for compulsory identity cards, the tough measures of the public order bill, and other suggestions for a closer control of individuals and the public in general. People who have lived through weeks of terrorist bombings, and tension which culminated in kidnapping and murder, are likely to call for repressive measures. They are likely to be willing to forego some of their rights in order to achieve security.

But the premise that terrorism is here to stay, and that "I don't see how we can stop it", is a concept hard to accept in Canada. Most Canadians believe that they live in communities where the law still has the upper hand over crime and political violence. They feel that the solution to a wave of terror is to eradicate the terrorists rather than to impose civil restrictions on the public. If the terrorist movement in Quebec has indeed become entrenched as Mr. Bourassa suggests, then this should be recognized as a situation calling for vastly increased police operations, a greatly stepped up insistence on efficiency, and all the outside help that may be required to solve the problem. Terrorism is not something which Quebec should settle down to live with permanently.

The background for these direct methods, of course, should be an augmented effort to remove the social ills of poverty and joblessness that can provide a basis for anti-social thinking that may lead to violence. Only if such recuperative measures fail — and it is difficult to believe that they will — should repressive controls that curb the hard-won liberties of free citizens be considered.

Nature Takes Its Course

CONCERN OVER BRITISH COLumbia forestry policy which engages men to reforest only about one acre for every seven logged has brought from the forest service a logical explanation. Most of the cut-over areas are being allowed to seed themselves — a process which is frequently slow but which can be justified to a substantial degree. Natural regeneration costs little or nothing. Planting by hand, which involves collecting seed, growing seedlings and then, after study, putting them in ground which promises good returns, is expensive.

With unlimited funds, replanting would be favored. Funds are not unlimited. Increased costs would raise the price of wood products — and the lumber market is increasingly competitive, a fact being brought home sharply to high-cost British Columbia industry.

The gap between areas logged and areas replanted is less alarming, in practical terms, than the 7 to 1 ratio would suggest. The province has set as its basic policy the principle of sustained yield, which requires the annual harvest to be no greater than new growth. Under this policy the annual allowable cut in British Columbia is at least 3.5 billion cubic feet. At present, officials point out, the actual cut is about half of that volume. The forests of the province, in other words, are growing substantially more timber each year, through natural increment, than is being cut. As a result, the slower process of natural regeneration is acceptable.

The concern over the limited extent of planting, however, has its own particular value: it keeps the province keenly aware that an increase in demand, resulting in a larger cut, could require a substantial increase in planting.

Delay Aids Canada in U.S. Trade Battle

SENATE supporters of free trade are intent on delaying final consideration by Congress of the protectionist trade bill which Canada and other U.S. trading partners are vigorously opposing. If the delaying tactics succeed, the bill will lapse with adjournment of Congress in mid-December, making it necessary for supporters to reintroduce it when the new Congress commences in the new year. As they brace for the crunch, the anti-bill forces have been heartened by signs of new administration concern about the dangers inherent in the bill. This note had been struck by Treasury Secretary David Kennedy and others.

Traynor

With time running out for this Congress, a group of 21 senators of both parties Wednesday spoke forcefully against the bill and spoke confidently of the possibility of preventing it receiving Senate approval. The House of Representatives gave approval last week to its version of the bill — which is basically the same although somewhat less protectionist than that to be considered by the Senate.

Ottawa Opposition

The bill was one of the main topics of discussion at an Ottawa meeting last week between members of the Canadian and American cabinets. Canadian ministers strongly restated their opposition to the bill, which would impose quotas on imports of cheap Asian textiles and footwear. Prior to the Ottawa meeting Canadian officials had bluntly voiced their concern, and the Canadian government had formally indicated its opposition in communications to the U.S. government.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin has referred to "dangerously protectionist elements" of the bill. In aides-memoirs to Washington, the Trudeau government has stated that the bill would have "serious" adverse affects on Canada and has urged the Nixon administration to resist it. (After each House passed a version of the bill a compromise version would be agreed on, and sent to the president, who has the option of signing or vetoing.)

No Strong Position

In recent months the president has not taken a strong position on the bill, which, in the House-passed form, incorporates elements he favors, notably textile import restraints and a balancing free trade provision related to key chemical tariffs. (The latter provision is absent in the version to be considered by the Senate.) But in a New York speech Wednesday, Mr. Kennedy said the U.S. must reject "fresh and arbitrary trade restrictions."

Urging modifications of trade restrictions in Europe and Japan as well, Mr. Kennedy said the current trend would "unquestionably lead to damaging retaliation and a general deterioration of international trade."

Of the U.S. he said: "This nation must not retreat from its dedication to traditional trading policy and a determination to move ahead, with others — toward a balanced increase in world trade." Mr. Kennedy was present in Ottawa when the Canadian cabinet ministers stated their opposition to the bill.

In an indirect attack on the bill, the head of the U.S. government's anti-trust office, warned that the raising of import barriers would aggravate inflation trends, which have not abated as the Nixon administration had hoped and are a matter of increasingly acute concern. Retaliation against American exports would mean a worsening of unemployment. This too is a prospect the administration cannot face lightly as it moves towards the 1972 presidential election.

Observers here are keeping a close eye on meetings between administration officials and Japanese representatives. These talks could result in an agreement for voluntary limitations on Japanese textile exports to the U.S. so as to free the administration from the need to support the textile quotas in the trade bill before Congress.

After some initial progress, however, the negotiators are showing some signs of bogging down.

Eye On South

Failing an agreement, the administration will have to weigh the need to protect its political position in the textile-producing South against the dangers inherent in a trade bill incorporating a series of protectionist features. One consideration which looms large in the aftermath of the recent congressional and state elections is the threat of foreign retaliation against U.S. agricultural exports including soybeans and grains. The president's party lost a good deal of ground in the midwest as a result of its farm policies and will be leary of risking further losses in 1972.

Letters

Weighing Reactions

The recent actions of the government in response to FLQ terrorism have brought to light the nature of the political parties in Canada. One hears reports of division within the ranks of the Conservatives, Liberals and New Democrats over the implementation of this War Measures Act, but when it came time to vote where were these divisions? Conservative and Liberal ranks were solid as the rock of Gibraltar behind the implementation, only the New Democratic Party was willing to risk its political future by voting against the Trudeau machine.

One can only hope that the New Democrats will not be punished by the voters of Canada for having the courage of their convictions. Mr. Stanfield deplored the act the day it was invoked but when he saw how the national trend in favor of the act was running he came over to the government side. The people of Canada must ask themselves what kind of men they want running the country, those with the courage to stand against the majority for their beliefs or those whose most important concern is being put in office the next election. Tommy Douglas may never be the Prime Minister of this nation, but this nation can certainly use men of similar courage. — Donald S. Hornett, 4811 West Saanich.

Discipline

Many of us as parents have had great difficulty trying to teach our children any of the niceties of manners, bearing, speech communication and social attitudes. The children said they would be odd-balls if they even stood straight, and most of the time we couldn't understand what they were saying without numerous repetitions.

The Children's Resistance Movement deliberately shoved adults into a world of the past and labelled it "Generation Gap," (a nauseous expression), and put emphasis on widening it. After taking charge, youth insists on a continually softer existence. Will they create a sick society that doesn't want to be cured because it finds the bed too comfortable? If so, this society isn't going to blow itself up or stifle itself with industry, it is going to melt in a pool of lethargy under a sign reading, "We have achieved the greatest of freedoms, to be left to lie undisturbed."

Perhaps we should have some forums on what disciplines are needed in our society and ways to achieve them. Possibly we can install some trained personnel in our schools to assist the teachers and guide the children toward physical and mental uprightness, orderliness and consideration for others. — Mrs. Nora de Goutiere, 239 Atkins.

Union at all Costs

If I were Canada I would prefer my own French Canadians to any American. I would prefer integration to separation. If, in order to understand their culture, I had to learn French, I would learn French. I would at all costs save the union. — Miss Audrey M. Goodchild, 2204 Cadboro Bay.

Grateful

My husband and I would like to publicly acknowledge the fine work of the Victoria Fire and Police Departments for their assistance and prompt service with regard to a minor fire suffered by us October 31, 1970.

Thank you, gentlemen! — Mr. and Mrs. B. Fuller, 1521 Edgeware.

BEYOND THE IDEOLOGIES

By C. L. SULZBERGER

Lubricating the Peace Drive With Arab Oil

WESTERN Europe is slowly beginning to realize that its prospects of industrial growth are directly linked to continued access to Middle Eastern petroleum, and that if another outbreak of fighting stimulates Arab oil producers to new embargoes, the Common Market's future may be jeopardized. Moreover, studies made available both to the Common Market and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, a larger body that includes a total of 22 members (the Common Market Six plus 16) indicate the likelihood that a shortage of tankers to transport needed petroleum may conceivably develop if shorter carrying routes are not re-established by opening the Suez Canal within the predictable future.

Sulzberger

Petroleum is required in Europe not only for lubricants and transportation but, much more than in the United States, for industrial power. On this continent only 15 per cent of petroleum imports are used for transport as compared with 50 per cent in North America. The rest goes mainly to industry and home heating.

It had been hoped that reliance upon oil would be reduced as other energy sources developed. However, while natural gas is entering the field increasingly, coal production is running down and the nuclear energy once counted on has fallen way behind original schedules.

European Dependence

This heightens Western Europe's dependence upon petroleum far beyond what had once been foreseen for this period. Moreover, it heightens Western Europe's dependence upon Middle East petroleum. New production in the North Sea appears to be on an insufficient scale to fill the gap. Nigerian production is coming on since the end of the civil war as well as new fields in Angola but these appear incapable of meeting the shortfall.

U.S. and Venezuelan oil are not reservoirs Europe can seriously reckon with and Soviet Russia's huge reserves have not yet become truly available. Moreover, prospective fields in Alaska and northern Canada face production delays for ecological reasons.

The result is that proposed increases in West Europe's gross national product, depending so largely upon maintaining steady advances in manufacturing output, rely heavily on Arab petroleum. Despite the fact that certain grim forebodings have been avoided, and today Libyan and Iraqi oil continues available on a larger scale than pessimists had foreseen, the rate of industrial growth is such that even greater absorption of petroleum must be assured.

Uneasily Serious

Last summer fuel experts were talking about conceivably "devastating" effects on the European economy brought about by possible total denial of Libyan and Iraqi petroleum through nationalization and prohibitive price rises. These threats have so far been dodged. Nevertheless, the situation is still uneasily serious and potentially critical.

Closure of the Suez Canal, which will almost certainly continue for many, many months, has forced the world at large and highly populated Europe in particular to rearrange the global tanker fleet. While huge supertankers have been constructed, so broad that they could never go through Suez, there has been a severe drawdown on accumulated European oil stocks.

Despite astonishingly large tanker construction programs (order books at all shipyards have been filled through 1974) the demand for more petroleum exceeds the supply because of the rate of industrial growth.

Furthermore, while there is petroleum in the ground, the combination of inadequate tanker fleets, a closed trans-Arabian pipeline to the Mediterranean (blown up by guerrillas) and the shutdown Suez Canal, keeps this fuel from flowing fast enough to burgeoning Europe from some of the more crucial Arab wells.

Freight Rates Soar

Thus, in the end, both the prosperity and by inference the national security of this enormously important half-continent are coming under a potential shadow. Already oil freight rates from the Persian Gulf are more than six times what they were in early 1967, before the canal was closed by war.

All these reasons help explain a gradually detectable shift in European policy on the Arab-Israeli confrontation and a mounting determination to get some kind of settlement in order to assure the freer, cheaper flow of oil.

The latest such detectable shift was recently seen in London and although there, as in other capitals, one finds little inclination to talk of peace in terms of oil (which is still considered a sullying political word) such is indeed not wholly removed from the fact.

From the Times of November 30, 1910.

Ontario newspapers are talking of staying the flow of population from that province to the West . . . The Liberal 'Duplessis Wing' in Quebec

By MALCOLM REID

QEUBEC — One effect on the FLQ crisis here has been to bring out the Duplessis wing of the governing Liberal Party.

That the wing existed was not unknown since it covered much of the backbench and extended into the cabinet in the form of men like Transport Minister Georges Tremblay, who says giving licence plate distributing concessions to political friends is "gratitude, not patronage."

Premier Robert Bourassa spoke of social progress on his way to the leadership of the Liberal Party but the province-wide party he took over was a machine that had been giving Quebec authoritarian rule before Maurice Duplessis arrived on the scene. This party was better typified by Mr. Bourassa's chief whip, Louis-Philippe Lacroix.

Mr. Lacroix is from Bellechasse, near Quebec City, but the party delegated him to win back the poverty-stricken Magdalen Islands near Nova Scotia from the Union Nationale in 1963.

To the pious Magdalen Island wives, he is the man who says it's not the Liberals who took the crucifixes out of the schools, it's the Union Nationale.

Rough Language

To their more tolerant husbands, he may be a man with a taste for rough language, but the strain of the Laporte-Cross cases has put his roughness on display as few politicians have ever had it displayed.

During the dull days when everything was happening in Montreal, he began quarrelling with the reporters of the legislative press gallery, and when he said that they would learn just how powerful a member of Parliament was, a collection of outbursts, swearing and all, was published in Le Soleil, the sedate daily that goes to the Magdalen Islands.

One published outburst from another paper was the subject of a question of privilege by Parti Quebois parliamentary leader Camille Laurin (whom Mr. Lacroix calls "The Mother Superior"): "You press gallery people are just a gang of separatists who've never earned a cent except by sucking up to the Parti Quebecois. If the kidnappers of Pierre Laporte touch a hair on him, the life of Rene Levesque, Camille Laurin, Charron, Bourgault, Michel Chartrand and the other slimy hypocrites won't be worth much."

It would have been galling to Mr. Lacroix to retract this, since it was reported by the reporter he likes the least, Jacques Guay of the Journal de Montreal, the most committedly left-wing reporter in the gallery.

So House Speaker Jean-Noel Lavoie said he sympathized but had no jurisdiction over words spoken outside the House, and Mr. Lacroix said the heat of the moment had played its part.

Just afterward, another Liberal backbencher, Henri Coiteux of Duplessis Riding, where he won by a hairsbreadth over a strong separatist current in the iron town of Sept-Iles, got up to say he understood his colleague's anti-reporter feelings.

Shouting Session

(He did not say that he had just come from his own shouting session in the gallery in which he had said, "I'm not Louise-Philippe Lacroix, I can tell you failures the truth without swearing," and reporters had shouted back that he was blaming them for the sins of others.)

His complaint was that Le Soleil had reported from Sept-Iles that he was resigning his seat. It had retracted this falsehood, he said, but refused to print his denunciation of "your reporter."

Mix Them Up

But a new aspect was added by Mr. Coiteux and Andre Marchand, the Liberal who defeated Rene Levesque in his riding of Montreal Laurier April 29. When the PQ members got up to speak on the issue, they shouted, "FLQers, sit down."

Mr. Coiteux explained on CBC television: "I don't have much education, PQ, FLQ, Communist, I mix these things all up." (To which the Corporation of Forest Engineers of Quebec, to which Mr. Coiteux belongs, replied in a wry press release that the legislator had a Bachelor of Arts, a Bachelor of Surveying and a Bachelor of Forest Science — it didn't want the idea getting around that forest engineers were uneducated.)

Mr. Marchand, asked to explain his shouts the next day, said he had meant that PQ House Leader Robert Burns was "the lawyer of the FLQ, in case anyone forgot it." Mr. Burns is defending several persons accused under the War Measures Act.

MARCHAND

The PQ members, proposing a basic change in Quebec's status coupled with a reform social program, are natural targets for conservative federalists. In the case of the reporters, and at least one PQ legislator, 24-year-old Claude Charron, the backbench anger goes deeper, into life style.

These unliberal Liberals see in the press gallery, inside the very Parliament buildings where they speak for this Quebec, a group in which mod dress, long hair, separatism and irreverent left-wing opinions are common. And it is this group, they believe, that is representing forces that are threatening them in their ridings back home.

'A Little More Trampling . . .'

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

An Editorial

Almost two years ago a Royal Commission inquiry into justice in Quebec handed in the first of what was to be a series of reports. It said that Quebec had a repressive, vindictive system of justice that trampled on human rights but failed to cut down on crime.

Today those failings are being treated almost as though they were a kind of equation, or inversely proportionate to each other.

It is being assumed that a much more effective attempt to cut down on crime can be organized if only the people will submit to a little more trampling on their human rights.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette has primed Quebecers for the bleak prospect of being processed and classified for police purposes.

■

With the slightly menacing advice that they had "better get used to the idea of more police powers," Mr. Choquette defended his earlier suggestion that identity cards, perhaps with photographs and thumbprints, would be a useful adjunct to his crusade.

Familiar arguments are being encountered in the course of examining the proposition.

First, as Mr. Choquette has been at pains to point out, the measure is actually intended to enhance the liberty of the individual by protecting him from the ill effects of crime.

Then there is the ubiquitous rationale of almost every author of progressive repression that "no one has anything to fear unless he has broken the law."

Mr. Choquette does not appear to be complaining of any lack of elbow room to deal with the Front de Liberation du Quebec. Invocation of the War Measures Act gave the police in Quebec an opportunity to move quickly and strongly against th FLQ and there is little sign that they will be greatly inhibited by the replacement legislation.

No, this sample of extra police muscle has served to whet Mr .Choquette's appetite for more. He wants to go after organized crime with it.

He senses, accurately we should think, a sympathetic tide of popular feeling for strong measures. Propelled by a revulsion for the FLQ, this mood invites a special brand of political opportunism and Mr. Choquette seems prepared to indulge it to the hilt.

Before any segment of Canadians is plunged into the era of the card-carrying citizen, however, a number of troublesome considerations should be resolved.

Not the least are doubts about the constitutionality of introducing in Quebec any identity card system, and Justice Minister John Turner should not concede the point.

■

What kind of return might be expected from a forfeit of some individual liberty in Quebec? Less, we suspect, than some people might imagine.

Among the very first applicants for identity cards would be the province's most sophisticated criminals. Subsequently, they would have not the slightest difficulty obtaining replacements and duplicates.

We would not argue that the criminal should get every available advantage — in Quebec or anywhere — but we are certain that in arriving at a proper balance between the liberty of the citizen and his security against crime, there are methods preferable to those Mr. Choquette urges.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has acknowledged that a more efficient national police force might have prevented the need to invoke the War Measures Act and has said that the operations of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will be reviewed. Let's keep detection before detention in the scale of police priorities.

Observing Earth From the Moon

By WALTER SULLIVAN

The transporting of a French-made laser reflector to the moon by the Soviet spacecraft Luna 17 is a major advance in what is becoming a broad, international program that should ultimately show to what extent each continent on earth is drifting relative to the others.

What was landed aboard the eight-wheel Lunokhod 1 vehicle on the Sea of Rains is a package of 14 "corner reflectors" much like those in a package of 100 landed last year by the first Americans to set foot on the moon.

Such reflectors are designed so that pulses of laser light aimed at the site from any point on the earth are reflected back to that point.

The principle is similar to that whereby a ball hit into a corner where two walls and a ceiling come together at right angles (as in four-wall handball or squash) bounces out of the corner at the same angle that it entered.

Dr. Carrol L. Alley of the University of Maryland heads the team working with the American laser reflector in the Sea of Tranquility.

Dr. Alley said variations in distance between that point on the moon and the Mc-Donald Observatory in Texas were being measured with an accuracy of less than one foot. New lasers now being developed may cut this margin to less than an inch, he believes.

The accuracy is largely determined by the shortness of the pulses and the accuracy with which its travel time to the moon and back can be measured.

The new lasers will also produce reflections bright enough to be observed in the telescopes of smaller observatories.

Dr. Alley is chairman of an international committee, formed of specialists from various countries, including the Soviet Union, that seeks to encourage widespread ranging of the lunar reflectors.

The French observatory on the Pic du Midi in the Pyrenees has obtained return pulses from the Tranquility reflector and now will probably also turn its attention to the new French-Soviet one. The Russians have sent pulses toward the American reflector through the 102-inch telescope of the Crimean Astrophysical Observatory, but were hampered by weather.

Next month the Japanese are expected to begin aiming their own laser beam at Tranquility base, and the results over the next few years are awaited with special interest.

This, as explaind by Dr. Douglas G. Currie of the University of Maryland, is because Japan is believed to be moving relatively fast away from North America — that is, at a rate of a few inches a year.

It is important to bounce pulses off several lunar sites, Dr. Alley said, to sort out the various wobbles, or "librations," that affect the moon's motion around the earth.

A more precise knowledge of these motions is expected to disclose much about the lunar interior, such as whether it is homogeneous, "lumpy," or with a dense metallic core.

The measurements may also settle a long-standing debate on whether gravity is stabile or is gradually weakening throughout the universe. In the latter case the earth-moon distance will slowly increase in a manner not explained by more conventional effects.

Riverview Solution: Close It Down

By BOB HUNTER
The Sun

It should go without saying that many staff members out at Riverview run themselves into the ground trying to make the situation more tolerable for patients. Certainly there are sensitive doctors, nurses, aides and volunteers.

But because of the setup—staff shortages, concentration of large numbers of patients with very different ailments in almost exactly the same setting, and the resulting need to treat them more or less systematically—it remains an impossible situation.

Seventh of Series

"Reform" is badly needed, but it is no solution. The only solution is to close Riverview down.

It was obvious to Sigmund Freud, back in 1917, that the best way to treat the mentally ill was for them "to remain during the treatment in those circumstances in which they have to struggle with the demands that their ordinary life makes on them."

●

To yank them out of their normal environment, pull them away from family and friends, push them into a mental institution, mix them with others who are likely to be even sicker than they are, and force them to adapt themselves to a routine that has nothing to do with their own individual needs, is clearly not going to increase their chances of being helped very much.

Moreover, in the process, they acquire—and know they are acquiring—the stigma of having been in such a place. That only adds one extra level of anxiety. One more burden piled on top of all the others which have already succeeded in flattening them.

Institutions inevitably breed bureaucracies. Rules are flushed into existence and are used sooner or later by some people against others.

Authority uses rules sometimes in subtle, possibly unconscious ways, other times not so subtly, to sustain itself. Regulations harden faster than cement, becoming the staircase along which one treads as one ascends in the hierarchy.

Riverview is no different in this regard from a thousand other bureaucratic machines. It has its power structure, demands loyalty and creates divisions and factions.

●

Depending on who is talking, the picture of the place shifts like a house of mirrors. A few staff claim it is one of the best places of its kind in Canada. Others consider it a gruesome relic of the past.

Patients are no less split in their opinions. Some defend it passionately. Others view their stay there with loathing and horror. One former patient went so far as to speculate that "the reason so many ex-inmates commit suicide is because they'd rather do that than go back."

At the administrative level the place makes more sense — appears more effective, functional and successful — than it does from the viewpoint of many of the patients.

Administrators are fond of talking about "total treatment planning," "treatment terms," and "integrated programs." This has a neat, technical ring to it.

Yet all too frequently, Riverview is efficient only on paper.

●

Consider how meaningless it is to talk about "total treatment programming" when, at the ward level, this amounts to lining naked infirm patients up in rows to have their showers, then pushing them through one at a time. (This problem is particularly acute on wards J-3 and J-4 in the East Lawn building.)

And consider how irrelevant it is to talk about "rehabilitation" and "job-placement counselling" when in some cases this amounts to sending old women who will in all likelihood never get out of the place down to work in the laundry, or making them spend their days sorting out sheets so badly stained with faeces they aren't worth the trouble of washing, they have to be burned instead.

On paper, these kinds of tasks — along with floorwashing and various other forms of menial labor — are supposed to serve the function of determining the patient's "job tolerance" or "degree of initiative."

●

Patients are paid from 10 cents to 50 cents a day to do this work. "Making money" is not seen as the main aim of these rehabilitation programs. Yet, obviously money is made, at least in the form of savings, at some budgetary point or other. How much therapy is accomplished is less certain.

Mrs. Jones Is Fighting Our War

By ANTHONY LEWIS

LONDON — The Rose and Crown, Wimbledon, has just won the prize as Pub of the Year. The proprietress, Mrs. Ann Jones, was delighted with such awards as a hand-knitted suit, 750 cigars and her own weight in sausages. But she has refused to accept a music system installed by Rediffusion Reditune, a British variant on Muzak.

"Nobody's going to stick that thing in my pub," Mrs. Jones said. She stuck to her principles even when the sponsors insisted that acceptance had been a condition of her victory.

★ ★ ★

The director of Rediffusion Reditune, G. W. Philips, wrote to the papers. He was surprised at Mrs. Jones' attitude, he said, because polls had shown that people preferred "background music above any other amenity" in pubs. She must have been "unduly influenced" by "a vocal minority."

Right there Reditune posed the issue, and not a frivolous one. Does the preference of a majority for some form of public entertainment carry the right to impose it on a minority to whom it is offensive?

The irrelevance of majoritarianism may be a little clearer if put in terms of beer. Suppose a poll showed that most drinkers in Wimbledon liked a squirt of lime in their lager. Would it follow that everyone who ordered lager in the Rose and Crown should be forced to take it with lime?

With pubs the customer may still have a choice: He can walk down the street and seek another place, a quiet one, for his beer. But what about airlines today, and terminals, and public places of every kind? They leave no alternatives. The citizen is in the position of S. J. Perelman's victim of telephone persecution who complained to the Bell System and was told: "If you don't like our service, sir, go to some other telephone company."

In an already noisy world, escape from background music is becoming hard. It was a horrifying experience, recently, to find that on the otherwise so pleasing Metroliner between New York and Washington there was screechy music, painfully out of tune, all the way.

★ ★ ★

Background noise is not just a crank problem, though the perpetrators of it like to treat it that way. For it exemplifies some of the characteristics of modern mass life that eventually make people miserable and rebellious. It is a physical invasion of the individual's privacy, indeed of his personality. And it produces that familiar feeling of helplessness.

The citizen who dares to complain about off-key music blaring at him in some airplane is usually eyed as a suitable case for treatment. He may be told that he must not go against majority preference.

But even if it were a case for popular sovereignty, which it is not, there is no showing that any majority has voted for the noise. The complainer often finds timid murmurs of encouragement coming from around him. They know they have never been asked. But what can they do?

More likely, the citizen will be put off with a bland reply that the "music" is being provided for his comfort and convenience. That is untrue: It is being imposed on him, not provided, and certainly not for his comfort.

★ ★ ★

The only hope is that a few brave Hampdens, village or otherwise, will make a stand. One Mrs. Jones may awake the sleeping lions of liberty across the land.

When the case of the Rose and Crown, Reditune and Mr. Philips arose here, a Mr. Michael Jeans wrote to The Times of London.

"It is becoming increasingly difficult," he said, "to find places where one's ears and mood are not continuously assailed by a tedious drivel of meaningless noise, often nauseatingly unsuited to the digestive system. Has Mr. Philips ever tried eating oysters to the accompaniment of a Hawaiian guitar?"

Most of us are numb, by now, but some are not. Maybe the best way for them to roll back the assault of continuous noise is to laugh it away. Ho Ho Ho.

Church Union Blueprint Offered by Study Group

TORONTO (CP) — An ordained ministry of bishops, presbyters and deacons is envisaged for the church that some day may replace the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada.

The church would be organized into pastoral zones, districts and regions with a national assembly the supreme legislative body.

No name yet has been recommended for the proposed new church. That will come late today when the general commission on church union votes on a dozen suggestions before it.

The outlines of the structure of the new church were given today in the draft of a proposed constitution drawn up by a special commission. The recommendations will be included in the preliminary draft of a proposed plan of union which the general commission is studying.

Talks on organic union of the two churches have been under way since 1943. Each has total constituencies of members and adherents of about 2.5 million but exact figures are difficult to define. In the 1961 census, more than six million persons professed to attend one or the other church. A third participant in the negotiations is the 5,000-member Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

MEMBERSHIP BY FAITH

Membership in the new church would be by faith and baptism, as at present, the special commission proposed.

The sacrament of baptism would be administered to those who have made a personal commitment of faith, or to children presented by their parents. This would be followed "at an age of accountability" by confirmation and reaffirmation of baptismal vows made on the children's behalf.

The ordained ministry would be open to both men and women. The Anglican Church does not have women priests; the United Church has ordained women as ministers.

Bishops would be elected through procedures determined by the national assembly and would be the principal ministers of ordination.

The pastoral zone would be the basic unit of the church at the local level, consisting of a number of congregations. Districts, each headed by a bishop, would supervise pastoral zones and would come under regions, of which initially there would be 16.

Each region would elect a president for a two-year term and each would have a regional synod. Each regional synod would elect two bishops to the national assembly.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Rally Rolls On . . .

Market action on the week's opening day gave investors renewed confidence with gains posted by the end of trading at New York, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

For New York it was the seventh successive improvement, at Toronto the sixth. Falling interest rates and lower bond yields, plus more investor confidence, were factors given credit by market watchers.

AT NEW YORK, the market continued to surge ahead on a broad front entering the seventh day of a rally that has established a recovery high by 2 p.m. Trading was active.

The previous recovery high for the Dow average was the 783.68 registered at the close of trading Oct. 7.

NYSE prices included Atlantic Richfield, up 1½ at $51½; Natomas, up 1¾ at $49⅞; Honeywell, up 1¾ at $73⅜; Sperry Rand, up 1 at $24½; Tenneco, up ⅝ to $19⅞; and Telex, up 1 at $21⅝.

AT TORONTO prices were sharply higher in moderate mid-afternoon trading.

Best advances were in beverage, communication, industrial mining, oil refining and pipeline sectors.

Thirteen of the exchange's 17 sub-groups were higher.

Among advancing issues, Noranda was up 1⅛ to $29⅜, B.C. Telephone 1 to $60½, Weldwood ¾ to $12¾, Patino ½ to $31; New Quebec Raglan ⅝ to $16¼, Rio Algom ⅝ to $16½, Asamera ¾ to $15⅞, Ranger ½ to $14 and Banff ½ to $13⅝.

Good Year dropped 2 to $80, International Mogul ½ to $10, Canadian Superior Oil ½ to $39 and Central-Del Rio ¼ to $11½.

AT MONTREAL the market moved higher in all sectors in moderate trading at the start of the afternoon session. Industrials and the composite index led the way, each gaining more than a point.

AT LONDON the stock market was little changed after an early rally attempt failed.

AT VANCOUVER prices were generally up in active trading.

Ionarc led the industrials, off .15 at $1.55 after trading 2,900 shares. Key Industries traded at .33 and Tokar was off .05 at $2.30.

Canarctiv was the most active of the oil issues with a turnover of 48,300 shares, up .06 at .66. Five Star was up .01 at .28 and Israel Oil was off .02 at .88.

Lexington Mines led trading at .56 on a volume of 347,600 shares. Rockland traded at .37 and Kopan was up .01 at .15½.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced nearly 3¼ cents a bushel on the Board of Trade today, then came under heavy profit taking that sent prices 6 cents down from the early high. There was a small recovery before the session closed.

In the selling spree, corn and wheat futures also gave up most of their early advances. Oats prices closed on an irregular tone, soy oil and meal declined.

Canadian Business Feels Profit Squeeze

By IRVING C. WHYNOT

Canadian Press Business Editor

To a business man, nothing is more vital than earning a profit. To Canadian business this year, it has been of even more concern than usual.

Company profits have been squeezed by the generally sluggish economy and by the lid on price increases accepted as part of the fight against inflation.

Unemployment has risen and capital spending by companies—which leds to more profits in the future—has slowed.

And in a more general way, business leaders are becoming increasingly concerned that the word "profit" itself is gaining a tinged reputation.

J. Allyn Taylor, president of Canada Trust-Huron and Erie of London, Ont., said in a speech last week that private enterprise is "the original current in the stream of Canada's affairs and the source of virtually all the material accomplishments we enjoy today."

Mr. Taylor, immediate past president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said this is a system exemplified by private business, with the profit motive as the generating force.

MOST PRODUCTIVE SYSTEM

"It is the basis of our democratic form of government and it has proven itself the most productive and responsive economic system known to man," he said.

"Yet it is a current of diminishing strength, yielding slowly but steadily to the growing pressures of government."

Mr. Taylor said business was losing its influence for a variety of reasons, such as growing acceptance by the public of the philosophy of state control, and the failure of business itself to initiate social change.

Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada also talked about profits in Regina last month. He mentioned the need for moderation of wage and salary demands if prices are to be kept in check.

"It is self-evident," he said, "we cannot expect such high rates of wage and salary increase and such low rates of price increase to continue together for long.

"The erosion of such sectors of income as corporation profits and farm income, which has made this disparity temporary possible, cannot continue indefinitely."

RECOGNIZED BY TRUDEAU

Prime Minister Trudeau, in the Commons Oct. 10, noted that profits have been falling since early 1969.

"There are obvious limits to this process if we are not to damage the economy's ability to create new jobs in the future through productive investment," he said.

It is difficult to say exactly how much profits have suffered this year as business fought rising costs, a slow economy and at the same time tried to keep its promise to the prices and incomes commission to hold price increases below cost increases.

Official statistics are slow in becoming available, but independent surveys indicate little change in total profit for the first nine months of this year as compared with the corresponding period of 1969. The total appears to be less than one per cent higher than a year ago.

Actually, the picture is worse than it appears at first glance since a strong profit showing by a few industrial giants tends to distort the over-all picture. Some of these large firms, such as International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., and Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd., were hit by strikes in 1969 and thus show much-improved profits this year.

Sharpest over-all profit declines were recorded by chemical companis, paper and forest product companies, base metal mines and gold mines. Strong profits come from steels, industrial mines and utilities.

What does the future hold?

The Toronto Dominion Bank said in a recent review: "Corporate profit margins will continue to be squeezed during the rest of 1970, with a sharp improvement expected thereafter."

National Trust

Interest rate cuts for prime single family residential mortgages and guaranteed investment certificates were detailed Wednesday by National Trust Co.

The firm reduced its mortgage lending rate from 10 per cent to 9¾ per cent, while dropping the rates it pays on term deposits from 8½ per cent to 8 per cent for five years, from 8 to 7½ per cent for three and four years, from 7¼ to 7 per cent for two years and from 7¼ to 6¾ per cent for one year.

Nickel Hill

Nickel Hill Mines Ltd. has acquired financing to evaluate a 1,500-mile coal reservation around Pink Mountain in the Peace River district of B.C.

The company will have exclusive right to stake licences for 30 days following expiration of notice period as indicated in the B.C. Gazette.

Prospects are for supplying the Japanese coking market from the seams, one of which has been found to be five feet thick, with outcrops from this and an underlying seam traceable for some 2½ miles. A detailed exploration program is planned from a consultant's recommendation that $140,000 be spent on phase one.

Citex

Preliminary work has been done prior to the start of diamond drilling on 22 claims of a copper prospect near Sooke, held by Citex Mines Ltd. The work included roadbuilding, rehabilitation of an old adit, magnetometer and geochemical surveys.

Drilling of six 400-foot holes was recommended by a consultant 18 months ago.

West Coast Resources Ltd. has underwritten 30,000 shares of Citex at 15 cents to net $45,00 for debt repayment, corporate purposes and $20,000 for drilling on two contiguous claim groups.

Evans

Acquisition of New York-based Ronthor Inc., a subsidiary of Ronthor Reiss Corp., by Evans Products Co. marks the Oregon firm's entry to the field of plastic products for homes and the building industry.

Ronthor, with more than $7 million in annual sales, operates injection molding plants in New Jersey and Georgia, and products include molded panels, decorative components and hardware for furniture and fixtures.

Chieftain

Chieftain Development Co. Ltd. of Edmonton and Blue Crown Petroleums Ltd. of Dallas, have farmed out 101,280 acres in the Nordegg-Brown Creek area of the western Alberta foothills to Skelly Oil of Canada Ltd.

Under the seismic option agreement, Skelly is currently conducting an extensive seismic program which will be completed by year-end.

Skelly has options to acquire a 50 per cent working interest in the acreage by drilling three deep test wells, each of approximately 18,000 feet. If Skelly elects to drill, the first well will be commenced prior to spring breakup.

Total Petroleum

A drop in revenue plus extraordinary merger expenses contributed to a sharp decline in net profit for Total Petroleum (North America) Ltd. for the nine months ended Sept. 30.

The company reports sales and other income fell from $55.54 million to $55.27 million; costs rose from $53.66 million to $53.98 million and the merger expense of $425,000 brought net income down from $1.88 million to $870,000.

Per share income was three cents against 22 cents a year ago.

Total formerly was French Petroleum Co. of Canada Ltd. and mergers involved Leonard Refineries Inc. and Le-Ref Inc., French's Michigan subsidiary.

Japanese Miners Work in Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. has hired four Japanese miners to work in its coal mine at Cache Creek in the Smoky River area of northwestern Alberta, Barry Roberts, the company's personnel officer says.

Roberts said that the men were recruited in Hokkaido, Japan, because "there just aren't enough qualifed, experienced coal miners in Alberta to go around."

They joined a staff of immigrant miners from the United Kingdom and Europe which is bolstered by in-training Alberta miners.

The Grande Cache coal mine, which has a 15-year contract to deliver 30 million tons of coal to Japan, will employ 650 men. It is located 350 miles northwest of Edmonton.

IMPORT REPORT

By DAVID CARERE

Seat Belt Squeeze

Drivers who do not wear seat belts (60% of all drivers according to the U.S. National Safety Council), may soon have no choice in the matter. Irvin Industries has developed an "Autosafe" interlocking belt system that prevents ignition when belts are not fastened. This system was clearly designed with cheaters in mind. Small sensors are built into each seat, and when pressure of more that 50 pounds is applied, each respective set of belts is activated. If the belts are not used, the car will not start—a flashing light and an annoying buzzer will provide additional incentive to buckle up.

CHIBA, Japan (Reuter) — Japan dominated the 19th Technical Olympics which ended here Tuesday. Japanese craftsmen, competing against the more than 270 skilled watchmakers, stone masons and steel workers from 15 countries, won 17 gold medals during the four-day annual international vocational competition.

In Virginia City, Nevada, a stagecoach driver was cited for driving under the influence of intoxicants and reckless driving, after the coach overturned as the driver, Leland Parish, attempted a left turn. The stagecoach was one of the attractions of the former mining town.

Is Your Car Dressed for the Cold?

The snow has fallen for the first time this year in Victoria, and according to the forecasts we could be in for some more. Don't risk injury to yourself or damage to your car by driving under-equipped this winter. To make sure the car is in top running order and capable of withstanding the onslaught of a possibly extreme winter, observe the following suggestions.

1) Completely check the cooling system. Replace all cracked hoses and clamps, test the thermostat and replenish a possibly dwindling antifreeze supply.
2) Outfit the rear wheels with snow tires and, if the front tires are showing signs of balding, replace them as well.
3) Wheel alignment, tire pressure and brake adjustment are all very important to safe steering and stopping.
4) Also make sure that the wipers and the defrosting system are working at maximum efficiency.

My thanks to Mr. Orrich of 960 Clent St., who wrote in reference to our column of the 15th of November and suggested that we were in error by recommending stopping on icy roads by not pumping the brakes. You are quite right sir! The column, through misprint, read "Stop Pumping The Brakes." It should have read "Stop By Pumping the Brakes."

LETHBRIDGE, BRANDON WIN FIRST GAMES

Birds Batter Uvic Crew

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds continued their overwhelming march through men's basketball rivals in Western Intercollegiate Athletic Association ranks by trimming University of Victoria Vikings 80-61 Saturday in an exhibition game at the UBC court.

Tom Holmes of Vikings fired 24 points to take individual scoring honors while Derek Sankey notched 17 to lead the Birds, who had trimmed Victoria 85-74 Friday for their 28th consecutive triumph in WCIAA play and fourth of the season.

Elsewhere, University of Brandon Bobcats and University of Lethbridge Chinooks moved out of the basketball league cellar Saturday by winning their first games of the season.

Chinooks defeated Calgary Dinosaurs 75-73 in Calgary and Bobcats hustled to an 89-67 victory over University of Regina Cougars in Regina. Donosaurs and Cougars are still winless in the 10-team league.

Lethbridge now has one win in three starts and Brandon owns a 1-3 record.

Vikettes Defeated In Overtime Battle

University of Saskatchewan (Regina) Cougarettes turned the tables on the University of Victoria Saturday by grabbing a 62-59 overtime decision over the Vikettes in a Western Intercollegiate Athletic Association women's basketball league struggle.

Vikettes, who had opened their schedule Friday with a 58-42 triumph over the Cougarettes, appeared headed for a second win when they held a six-point lead with four minutes remaining after overcoming a 33-25 half-time deficit.

Victoria's defence, shaky most of the way, cracked in the closing stages and Vikettes needed a field goal by Rose Jossul with two minutes remaining to force the overtime session, which was controlled by the Cougarettes.

Miss Jossul, who had notched 19 points Friday, turned in another sparkling performance to pace the scoring parade with 24 points. Lynne Hagglund added 13 and Pam Hartnett counted 11 for Uvic.

Ruby Werhun scored 13 points to pace Regina, which had lost its first three starts.

Vikettes continue their road trip with games tonight and Tuesday in Saskatoon, where University of B.C. Thunderettes swamped the Saskatchewan Huskiettes 54-32 Saturday after chalking up a 52-46 victory Friday.

Former Vikette Heather Witzell scored 13 points for the Huskiettes Friday and collected nine in Saturday's game.

Running over a four-mile course, Oak Bay's Allan Weicker paced the boys to the finish line with Jim Thorne of Mount Douglas taking second ahead of Esquimalt's Gary Lockyer.

Debbie Reid of Mount Douglas was the best of the girls over a 2.5-mile distance,

GRIM CRICKET BATTLE

BRISBANE (AP) — England is staging a grim fight to overhaul Australia's first-innings score of 433 in the first cricket test at Brisbane.

England on Sunday carried its overnight score of 90 for 1 to 365 for 6 to trail Australia by 68 runs.

Every England batsman contributed something but the player deserving most praise was wicketkeeper Alan Knott, who defied the Australian attack for 262 minutes to score 73.

Alan Thomson, Australia's new bowling star, didn't take a wicket.

The match resumes Tuesday after a rest today.

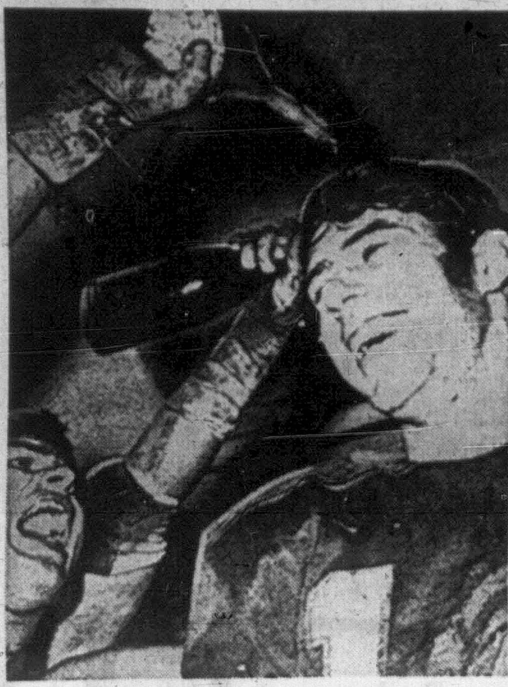
Alouette Defence Beats Cowboys at Own Game



SOAKING SONNY

Voted outstanding player in Saturday's battle, Montreal quarterback Sonny Wade gets shampoo shower from clubmates during dressing-room celebrations.

'Rags-To-Riches' Climb Complete For Etcheverry

TORONTO (CP) — Sam Etcheverry, who three times missed victory leading someone else's team into the Grey Cup final, made it all the way Saturday with a team he built himself.

His Montreal Alouettes—the club with which he rewrote the record book as a quarterback in the mid-50s—took on Calgary Stampeders at their own game of defensive football and won the 1970 cup 23-10 over the mud and torn turf of CNE Stadium.

The rebuilding job, from last place to their first championship in 21 years, took Montreal one season.

Etcheverry said after the game he had given no thought to his three previous trips to the Grey Cup and his three consecutive losses to Edmonton Eskimos, in 1954-55-56.

No team since has scored more points in a single season than the 478 rolled up by the Alouettes of 1956 and the 67 touchdowns they scored that year still is the record.

That 1956 club made 420 first downs, gained 5,067 yards passing and 7,456 yards rushing—records that still stand.

The 56 converts kicked by the 1955 Als is a mark that no team has surpassed in 15 years.

But he couldn't win with the juggernauts he led in those days.

This year, he did it with a club that finished third in the Eastern Conference.

"The players improved when it counted most," he said, and gave the credit to quarterback Sonny Wade for winning the cup.

Wade Selected Game's Standout

So did the football reporters of Canada, who voted Wade the most valuable player on the field.

"I sent in a few plays during the game," Etcheverry said. "Maybe six or seven, but the rest was Sonny all the way."

It was the first time a third-place club had won the cup in the 58 games which have been played since it was given in competition in 1909, but it couldn't have been any other way.

Calgary, with one of the best defensive records—second in Canada only to Saskatchewan Roughriders in points-against during the season—ended in third place in the Western Conference.

"Talk about your West defences," Etcheverry said. "Well, we out-defenced them today."

But it didn't start out that way.

As the Als have several times this year, they committed offensive lapses which allowed the opposing defence to get the jump on them.

The first pass Wade threw was intercepted by defensive halfback Frank Andruski. Calgary couldn't move the ball, but when Ron Stewart punted, receiver Bob Storey bobbled the ball and offensive guard Billy Roy fell on it on the Montreal 15.

Three plays later, Hugh McKinnis, rookie from Arizona State and leading rusher in the Canadian Football League, took a third-and-one hand-off in from five yards out.

Als Pick Off Two Keeling Passes

It was the only touchdown Calgary was destined to get, although Wade was intercepted twice more, by Gig Perez and again by Andruski. Al Phaneuf intercepted two passes by Calgary quarterback Jerry Keeling.

The only other Calgary points came on Larry Robinson's convert and his 33-yard field goal.

It was Robinson's kicking which dramatically moved Calgary into the Grey Cup. He punched through a field goal on the last play of the last game of the best-of-three WFC final to give the Stamps a one-point victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Montreal got three touch downs Saturday, from flankers Ted Alflen and Garry Lefebvre and wide receiver Tom Pullen. George Springate, the Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly who does Montreal's short-yardage place-kicking, converted the Lefebvre and Pullen touchdowns, and kicked a 21-yard field goal.

Calgary led 7-6 at the end of the first quarter, and Springate's missed convert on Alflen's touchdown loomed large. However, he got the lead for Montreal with his second-quarter field goal—the only scoring in that quarter.

Robinson put Calgary ahead in the third with his field goal but the Alouettes went in front to stay seven minutes later on Pullen's seven-yard touchdown run.

Denson Passed When Rush Stopped

The Alouettes made a spectacular recovery from the McKinnis touchdown which gave Stamps the early lead.

The next time they got the ball, Wade moved the Alouettes deep into Calgary territory in 10 plays from their own 37. Halfback Moses Denson ran right and was stopped behind the line.

With defensive back Terry Wilson hanging on to one leg, Denson threw to Alflen on the goal line.

Wade said it was a "spur-of-the-moment" move by Denson.

"I never intended it to be that way and what's more he did it with that man hanging on to his leg," the quarterback said.

Midway through the second, Wade's deep punt was fumbled by Perez and centre Gene Ceppetelli recovered for Montreal on the Calgary 17. Three plays later, Springate had his field goal.

The breaks went the other way in the third quarter when Wade dropped the ball after trying to punt from a bad snap on his own 34. Defensive end Dick Suderman fell on the ball and, three plays later, Robinson was good on his 33-yard field goal.

Phaneuf, runner-up in pre-game voting for the Canadian Player of the Year, broke up two consecutive Calgary drives in the third quarter with his interceptions.

His second set up a touchdown.

Discarded Evanshen Has Big Day

Halfback Bruce Van Ness passed 21 yards on an option play to wide receiver Terry Evanshen on the seven. Evanshen, whom Calgary traded to Montreal for centre Basil Bark early in the season, was the Als' top receiver Saturday, taking six passes for 95 yards.

Wade then sent Pullen, an end who lined up at flanker on this play, into the end zone on a reverse with what turned out to be the winning points.

The quarterback said Pullen had been practising the play for two weeks and "we've been calling him 'Flash' in practice because of it."

Montreal's final touchdown was the only scoring play of the fourth quarter and came when Wade hit Lefebvre right on the numbers in the end zone from 10 yards out.

The touchdown came on a post pattern.

"It was an automatic from the line of scrimmage," Wade said in a croak. His throat was raw from screaming signals against the roar of the 34,454 persons in the stands.

"All Gary heard was the last part (of the call) because of the noise. But he got loose and was in there."

The Als, who went through the Eastern playoffs in mud, seemed to adjust to the field conditions better than the Stampeders, who won the West on a frozen field.

The Stamps praised their opponents, but damned the playing surface.

"For a Grey Cup game it was a farce," said offensive guard Granville Liggins.

McKinnis said "it was a lousy field."

Tighter Security Curbs Vandalism

TORONTO (CP) — The task of cleaning up after the three-day highjinks known as the Grey Cup Festival was near completion today, even as many revellers were still making muted efforts to get back home and a return to normal.

One police spokesman, a veteran of these festivities, said this year's party "was the most," but he was diplomatic enough not to elaborate.

To Peter MacArthur, assistant manager at the Royal York Hotel, unofficial headquarters for the merrymakers, it was a whole new bag.

"It's a different crowd. . . . I've really noticed it this year. The crowd, from where I can see it, is so much younger. Look at that; 16 and 17 year olds. And there's a lot of younger ones. Maybe I'm just getting older."

A tight cordon of security thrown up around the hotel Friday night, in an effort to cut down on vandalism as well as allow the already over-taxed confines of the hotel some breathing space, were not necessary Saturday.

The expected last-ditch spree failed to materialize.

Property damage from pre-game festivities was unusually small this year.

"There were a few broken windows, phones pulled off their cord, but all-in-all, it was just generally dirty," said MacArthur.

Many visitors sobered sufficiently before Saturday's football game to join an estimated 500,000 who lined the route of the largest Grey Cup parade in history.

Even the game itself was a box-office success with record receipts of $740,000, including $460,000 from the sale of tickets.

The only letdown for the sellout crowd of 34,454 in CNE Stadium was Prime Minister Trudeau's official kickoff. His 25-yard kick into the hands of a waiting official was three yards short of his own record for heads of state performing the function.

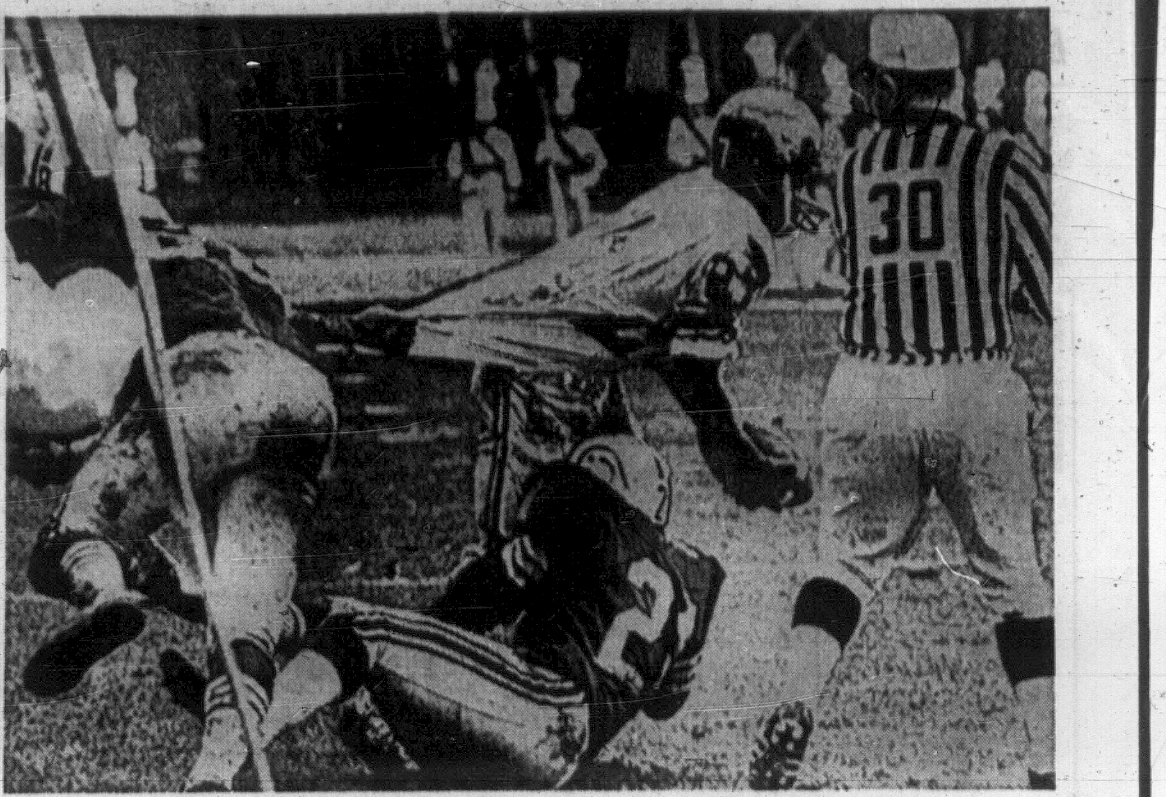
CANADIAN BOWLERS FAIL TO HIT TOP 10

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Klaus Mueller of West Berlin whipped Henry Tan of Singapore in two of their three final games Sunday to win the sixth World Cup tenpin bowling championships.

Mueller blasted Tan 236 to 190 in the opening game of the title match. Tan came back with a 195-176 victory in the second game, but the German prevailed 194-176 in the final.

Mueller's actual total was 606, but he picked up 45 bonus points to boost his aggregate to 651. Tan had 561 with 20 bonus points for a 581 total.

Canada failed to place a bowler among the top 10 for the first time since it entered World Cup competition five years ago. Grayson Robinson of Toronto, who won the cup in Tokyo last year, and Frank Boehm of Regina, current Canadian champ, were eliminated Saturday in the quarter-finals.



DAY OF FRUSTRATION FOR STAMPS

It was day of frustration for Calgary Stampeders in Saturday's Grey Cup football final as they dropped 23-10 decision to Montreal Alouettes. One of those aggravating incidents arrived on this play as Calgary's Uriel Johnson appeared on way to good gain. Hand reached out of pack to grab Johnson's shirttail and hold him until Bobby Lee Thompson moved in for tackle.

Wings Start to Press As Canucks Bow Twice

By The Canadian Press

This month the National Hockey League board of governors amended their bylaws, allowing the 14 teams to dress two additional skaters for a game.

The move was greeted with dissent by some, particularly the league's have-nots who faced difficulties icing a respectable big league team, let alone keeping them happy down on the farm.

The new league ruling allowed teams to have 18 skaters dressed plus two goaltenders. Earlier, the governors placed a temporary limit of 17 skaters, up one from the 16 allowed in the bylaws.

New York Rangers, needless to say, were among those supporting the amendments. Emil Francis, Rangers' general manager and coach, was one of the leading exponents of the change, having voiced his approval during training camp.

After all, he knew there was talent in the Ranger farm system that was NHL material if given the chance to prove itself.

EACH LINE SCORES

Sunday night illustrated his point as New York's four lines shared in the scoring as the Rangers dropped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-2 to remain within two points of Boston Bruins, East Division leaders, who took a 4-2 hom ice win over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The victory extended Rangers' unbeaten string on home ice to 11 games.

Other Sunday games saw Detroit Red Wings, with captain Alex Delvecchio scoring twice in the first period, defeat Montreal Canadiens 5-3 to move to within two points of Voncouver Canucks, fourth in the East and 4-2 victims of Philadelphia Flyers, Chicago Black Hawks continue unbeaten in 12 home appearances with a 5-3 decision against Los Angeles Kings, and Ernie Hicke's goal with five minutes remaining give California Golden Seals a 2-1 victory over Buffalo Sabres.

LEAFS CUT LOOSE

Saturday, Toronto put on its biggest scoring display of the season, drubbing Detroit 9-4, New York and Boston played to a 3-3 tie, Chicago scored twice in the third period for a 3-1 win over Philadelphia, St. Louis tripped Vancouver 5-1, Montreal had the same score over Pittsburgh Penguins, and goals by Buster Harvey and Charlie Burns lifted Minnesota North Stars to a 3-2 win over Los Angeles.

At Boston, defenceman Bobby Orr recovered from an earlier defensive miscue to assist Ed Westfall on the winning goal while the Bruins were shorthanded, then added the insurance goal with six seconds remaining and Toronto goaltender Bruce Gamble removed for a sixth Leaf attacker.

Orr's faux pas in the first period enabled the Leafs to take a 2-1 lead. It came as the Bruins were killing another penalty. His clearing pass behind the Boston net was snared by Ron Ellis who slipped it out to Darryl Sittler and the rookie scored behind veteran Ed Johnston.

FERGUSON'S FIRST

Delvecchio, who missed the third period of Saturday night's game at Toronto with a knee injury, tallied his ninth and 10th to send the Red Wings into a 2-0 lead.

The Detroiters increased the score to 4-1 as Frank Mahovlich scored his 399th career goal after Montreal's John Ferguson put the Canadiens on the scoreboard with his first of the season since returning recently from a two-month retirement.

Als' Fans Frantic

(Times News Services)

Hordes of chanting football fans crowded into Montreal's International Airport Sunday to welcome home Montreal Alouettes, winners of the 1970 Grey Cup.

Montreal police estimated 5,000 fans jammed into the reception lobby while hundreds more crowded onto the observation ramp to see the Alouettes return from Toronto, where they defeated Calgary Stampeders 23-10 Saturday to capture the national football title.

Many were bearing banners which bore such slogans as "The 21-year wait ends," "Welcome home champs," and in French "Bravo a nos Allouettes."

One RCMP officer described the confusion at the driveways leading to the airport as "the most frantic I've ever seen."

Cars crowded three deep into the parking lot while the overflow of fans spilling out of the terminal prevented all traffic from reaching the departure gates.

Fiji Side Defeats Canada

VANCOUVER — Fiji's touring international rugby squad stormed to a decisive 35-17 win over Canada Saturday before 4,000 spectators at chilly Swangard Stadium.

Playing the characteristic brand of wide-open rugby that has made Fiji one of the world's most popular touring sides, the south sea islanders got stiff competition from Canada early in the match.

Fiji trailed 17-12 early in the second half, but their galloping forwards and flashy backs soon took firm control of the game with fast-moving, attack-oriented play.

Despite a hard, snow-patched playing field, Fiji's scoring attack continued to press until the final minute of play.

UNHAPPY SURPRISE

Fiji's stamina and drive came as an unpleasant surprise to the Canadian side, which had expected to do much better against the visitors.

After a mini-tour of formidable New Zealand and a full scale tour of the British Isles, Fiji was riddled with injuries.

The game with Canada was the last match before going home, and of Fiji's 25 touring players more than half had been injured during the gurelling schedule.

Some New Zealand writers had criticized Fiji during the portion of the tour on the grounds that they had concentrated too much on attack.

World Outboard Champ

LAKE NAVASU CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Bill Sirois of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., won the $60,000 world outboard motor championship in record time Sunday. His prize was $18,000.

The 30-year-old bachelor took the lead from Jim Merten of Oshkosh, Wis., in the sixth hour of the eight-hour endurance race over the four-mile, boomergang-shaped course on Lake Navasu.

He averaged 79 miles an hour, covering 640 miles in his 21-foot Molinari Tunnel boat, powered by two Mercury engines.

Merten, who held the lead after the first four hours Saturday, finished second ahead of Renati Milinari of Como.

Merten lost the lead and the race when fire burned the wires in his guidance system, forcing him to make a seven-minute pit stop. An electrical short was blamed for the fire.

A field of 69 boats, out of 100 that had started Saturday, finished in a light drizzle Sunday.

In contrast to Saturday, when seven drivers were injured, and Friday, when one was killed, there were no accidents or injuries Sunday.

Cents Drop Eighth Straight

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (AP) — Venezuela crushed winless Canada 9-1 Sunday night in the world amateur baseball championship.

It was the eighth straight loss for Canada, represented by Victoria Centennials. The Venezuelans have won six and lost three.

Diogenes Bravo pitched the entire game for Venezuela, limiting the Canadians to eight hits while his teammates, got 14.

A first-inning threat by the Canadians filled the bases off a single by first baseman Barry Harvey of Victoria, a double by second baseman Dave McKay of Vancouver and a walk to Yves Blanchard of Montreal, but Bravo retired the side without allowing run.

Venezuela scored once in the second inning and twice in the third. Canada got its only run in the third when Blanchard, who had hit a double, scored on a single by Doug Hill, Victoria's centrefielder.

Venezuela scored again in the sixth and got five runs in the seventh.

Larry Webster of Vancouver gave up one run on a single and a single in the seventh inning before he was relieved by Roy Rowley of Moose Jaw, who let the Venezuelans scored four times on two singles, a double and an error.

In other games Sunday, the United States and Cuba each won their games and remained tied for the lead.

The U.S. defeated Colombia 4-1 while Cuba blanked Guatemala 4-0. Each has a won-lost record of 8-1.

In other games Holland beat the Netherlands Antilles 9-3, Puerto Rico defeated Nicaragua 6-3 and the Dominican Republic routed Italy 10-1.

Saturday, Burt Hooton pitched a no-hitter as the U.S. beat Cuba 3-1. Puerto Rico routed The Netherlands Antilles 9-1 and Venezuela defeated Nicaragua 6-3.

Canada's scheduled game against Italy on Saturday was one of three postponed by weather conditions. It was rescheduled for Tuesday.

Also postponed were the Holland-Dominican Rupublic and Colombia-Guatemala contests.

Race Gets Tighter As Vic West Falls

Cosmopolitan Royals, Gorge Molsons and Duncan Village Green kept the race for first place a tight affair Sunday with decisive first-division victories in the Victoria and District Soccer League.

Gorge remained in third place with a 4-0 shutout over Roadrunners at Central Park while Village Green blanked Oak Bay 2-0 in Duncan and Royals tumbled Hourigans 6-1 at Heywood Avenue Park to stay in a tie for fourth place.

In the only Saturday match, University of Victoria Vikings launched the race-tightening trend upsetting Victoria West 1-0 in Topaz Park.

It was the first loss of the season for Wests and left them with 12 points, one ahead of second-place Vikings, two ahead of Gorge and only three ahead of Royals and Village Green.

In third-division encounters Sunday, Gorge blanked East Saanich 8-0 at Hampton Park, Songhees downed Stein Construction 3-1 at Reynolds Road Park and London Boxing Club recorded a 5-4 victory over Casuals at Blanshard Field. Prospect Lake shut out Gorge 3-0 in the only Saturday tussle.

'Third-Down Football' Key to Giant Success

By The Associated Press

Pay attention, now, Professor Francis Asbury Tarkenton is giving lessons on how to win football games.

"You've got to play third-down football," says Tarkenton, the New York Giants' game-wrecking quarterback. "If you don't make your third downs, you might as well go home."

Believe it.

Tarkenton made good on five straight third-down plays during three touchdown drives and the Giants scrambled to a 27-24 victory over Washington Redskins Sunday that kept their title hopes alive in the National Football League.

The New York victory kept the pressure on St. Louis Cardinals, who have a 1½-game lead in the National Conference's frantic Eastern Division race over the Giants and Dallas Cowboys.

The Cardinals, with Jim Hart passing for a pair of touchdowns, spanked Philadelphia Eagles 23-14 to give them an 8-2-1 record. The Giants and Cowboys are 7-4.

RAMS WIN

Los Angeles's revitalized Rams sandblasted San Francisco '49ers 30-13 and pulled into a tie with the '49ers for first place in the National Conference's Western Division race; Baltimore Colts cemented their hold on the American Conference eastern battle with a 21-20 success over Chicago Bears and Kansas City Chiefs tied Oakland Raiders for the American Conference Western Divison lead with a 26-14 win over San Diego Chargers.

The American Conference Central Division was thrown into a three-way tie for first. Pittsburgh Steelers clouted Cleveland Browns 28-9 and Cincinnati Bengals knocked off New Orleans Saints 26-6. The Steelers, Browns and Bengals are tied for first with 5-6 records.

New York Jets rained on a planned Minnesota champagne party Sunday with an upset 20-10 victory that delayed the Vikings clinching the National Conference's Central Division title.

BOSTON SURPRISES

Boston Patriots bounced Buffalo Bills 14-10 and Houston Oilers whipped Denver Broncos 31-21 in Sunday's other games.

Tarkenton, a hard man to pin down, pumped new life into the Giants, who were stunned last week by Philadelphia.

On an early third-down play, Tarkenton fumbled the snap from centre, but grabbed the ball off the ground and shovelled an underhand toss to fullback Tucker Frederickson for a four-yard gain that kept the touchdown drive alive.

Later, in another third-down situation, Tarkenton wheeled and dealt under the fire of a fast-closing Redskin line: He ducked, squirmed and twitched away from the enemy, then sailed a pass to the five-yard line that set up a touchdown on the next play.

Richmond Runners Place Second

VANCOUVER — Richmond of Victoria nailed down second place in the peewee girls' division of the B.C. elementary school cross-country running championships Saturday at the University of British Columbia.

Richmond's total came to 79 points, only five more than the score of winning Ridgewood School of North Vancouver under the reverse scoring system.

Ulla Hansen led Richmond's effort by placing fifth in a field of 202. Susan Hutchinson was eighth, Mary Cavin 14th, Cathy Cliff 21st, and Elisabeth Street 31st.

★ ★ ★

Sidney, the only other Vancouver Island representative, was seventh out of 22 schools in the peewee girls' division.

Top individual for Sidney was Sonya McGoldrick, who placed 17th.

The Sidney tyke boys' squad placed eighth in a field of 18, the tyke girls' team finished third among 12 teams and the peewee boys were 12th out of 21.

Leading tyke girls were Karen Morris (eighth) and Cindy Wilson (10th).

Saxons Step Up Ladder By Topping Castaways

University of Victoria Saxons stepped into fourth place in the Victoria Rugby Union's second division Sunday with an 11-5 victory over second-place Castaways at Carnarvon Park.

In other matches, James Bay Athletic Association blanked Oak Bay Wanderers 6-0 at Windsor Park and Saanich Velox claimed an easy 11th straight victory through a win by default over Cowichan in Duncan.

The other scheduled match between CFB Esquimalt and Nanaimo Hornets in the "Hub City" was postponed because of snow conditions.

Mark Hoffman scored two trys to pace Saxons while Mel Reeves added a single try and booted a convert. Ian Murray scored a try and Mike Elcock kicked a convert for Castaways.

Rick White and Max Snoblen scored trys for the JBAA victory.

Cats Score Three But Get Only One

Victoria Cougars' 1-1 draw with Vernon Essos in their British Columbia Junior Hockey League meeting at Memorial Arena on Saturday evening might be entitled "How the Crow Flies."

A fella wrote a piece n the Cougar program that lauded Victoria's scoring heroics in recent games . . . 33 in four matches. He suggested these Cats don't have to struggle to score, as was the case with Victoria teams in recent years, and the team splits Saturday's points with the 1-1 result.

Eat crow?

Not really. The Cougars actually scored three goals. Two counted, including Vernon's equalizer, and the best effort of the evening was the one that didn't count.

Centre Chris Riddell scored the only one that counted for Cougars' cause, hitting while Vernon played two men short as a result of first-period penalties.

Winger Ernie Gare took credit for Vernon's goal, the all-important equalizer at 15:19 of the third period that also came in a power-play situation. But it was Victoria goalkeeper Ed Forslund, and not Gare, who turned the puck into the cage.

Forslund attempted to block Gare's passout from behind the net, as required, but the puck took a wrong turn, dribbled through Fast Eddie's legs and into the net.

Vocgoria coach Ron Maxwell said he'll accept the blame for Vernon's goal.

"I feel badly about that. Early in the game, Eddie let at least two passes sail across his crease. I told him at the start of the third period that it's his duty to stop those. He made the right play."

Interference Penalty Nullified Goal

Lonnie Miles was the third Victorian to score on Saturday. In the eyes of John Zedic, that one didn't count because the referee had whistled an interference penalty on Cougars' Scott Munro just before Miles turned the puck past Vernon goaltender Leo Karchie.

It was unfortunate because it was a classic: All five Cougar attackers figured in the effort. They moved the puck behind their own goal and into Vernon's net without any Victoria player skating more than two strides while in possession of the rubber.

It went bang, bang, bang, bang . . . and in!

The draw flattered Essos. Forslund, as Maxwell suggested, deserved a shutout although Karchie was the most outstanding player on the ice. The Cougars moved the puck well, afforded Forslund good protection, but couldn't seem to finish in front of Karchie.

Cougars still remain in control of the Coastal Division lead, especially after Vancouver Centennials split their weekend games in the Okanagan. Vancouver regained possession of second place, seven points behind Victoria, by trouncing Kelowna Buckaroos 9-2 on Sunday.

Kamloops Rockets helped Victoria's cause by defeating the Cents 3-1 on Saturday.

In the only other weekend game, Vernon got back on the winning track by defeating Chilliwack Bruins 5-1 in a riotous Sunday game at Chilliwack.

Winger Wayne Dye, who drew a game misconduct early in the second period of Saturday's game at Victoria, sparked Essos with three goals on Sunday. Jim Marsh and Jim Lawrence added singles while Ed Lavigne spoiled Karchie's shut-out bid.

Referee Barry Wilson handed out 158 minutes in penalties, including four majors a misconduct and nine game misconducts following a brawl that erupted at the 7:14 mark of the third period. Dye was one of the players slapped with a game misconduct.

Kamloops goalie Sam Clegg, yielding only a goal to Neil Murphy while stopping 33 Vancouver shots, stymied the Centennials on Saturday. Oliver Steward, Kelly Pratt and Gary Howatt scored for the Rockets, who moved to within two points of the Okanagan-leading Penticton Broncos.

Pat Russell (3), Murphy (2), Dave McLellan (2), Mike McCarty and Gord Stewart restored Centennials' firepower in Sunday's game at Kelowna. Larry Patenaude and Doug Manchak were Kelowna's goal-getters.

United in Late Charge To Draw With Leaders

By DAN STINSON

VANCOUVER — Victoria United surged back in sensational style after first-half troubles at Empire Stadium Sunday, hustling to a 2-2 draw with Vancouver Columbus to gain full possession of second place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

The single point earned by each club snapped a second-berth deadlock between Victoria and idle Croatia, and maintained a one-point margin for unbeaten Columbus in the league's top position.

Players appeared able to ignore steady snowfall during most of the contest and both clubs displayed fine, two-way soccer on the Tartan turf before about 300 fans.

United goalkeeper Barry Sadler was outstanding during the opening exchanges as he made no fewer than three sensational saves under a relentless Columbus attack. Sadler was finally beaten at 18 minutes when Allan Bristowe took a fine pass from Victori Kodelja and blasted his first goal of the season from eight yards.

SCORES ON PENALTY

Unable to penetrate the tough Vancouver defence before the intermission, the Victorians came alive after John Milner had sent Columbus ahead 2-0 on a penalty shot at 23 minutes of the second session.

Ike MacKay trimmed the margin three minutes later, getting his fourth tally of the campaign after taking a clearing pass from Gil McIlraith and dribbling a 25-yard shot past goalie Peter Greco.

Brian Robinson's penalty shot after a Columbus defender handled the ball in a goalmouth scramble at 34 minutes knotted the count at 2-2 and only some key stops by Greco in the late stages prevented the suddenly-inspired United from going home a winner.

Bruce Wilson of Columbus almost steered a corner kick into the Victoria net on the final play of the game, but his shot was stopped by Ron Thompson, who was steady throughout on the United defence.

In another league game played Sunday, two goals by Rick Thomas gave North Shore a 2-0 triumph over New Westminster.

On Saturday, Eintracht nipped Paul's Tailors 1-0 on a scoring shot by Greg Arnett.

Pipers Blank Oak Bay Club

Sandpipers blanked Oak Bay 1-0 Saturday in a Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey League first-division match at Windsor Park.

In the only other first-division match, University of Victoria downed Mariners 4-2 at Uvic.

Janet Holmes scored the lone goal for Sandpipers while goaltender Liz Dickson recorded the shutout.

Stephanie Corby led Uvic with two gials while Jennie John collected both goals for Mariners.

Evergreens thumped Pirates 6-1 in asecond-division tussle at Beacon Hill Park as Shirley Cox scored three times.

Vikings Improve, But Not Enough

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds showed why they are considered contenders for the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association's hockey championship by routing Victoria Vikings 14-3 on Saturday.

It was the Vikings' turn to impress Sunday. Victoria held UBC to a 3-3 draw after two periods, then bowed 7-3 to the Thunderbirds.

The sweep of the two games played at Esquimalt Sports Centre boosted UBC's record to four wins, no losses.

Elsewhere, Calgary Dinosaurs played their eighth game in 10 days Sunday but still were fresh enough to defeat Alberta Golden Bears 5-3. In other games, Brandon Bobcats tripped Saskatchewan Huskies 8-3 and Andy Miles scored two goals, one on a penalty shot, to lead Manitoba Bisons to a 5-4 victory over Winnipeg Wesmen.

Goaltender Darryl Sparks played a standout game in keeping Vikings in the picture Sunday until UBC broke away by scoring four goals in the final 12 minutes of action.

Tom Williamson and Doug Buchanan scored twice each for the Thunderbirds, while Jack Moores, Barry Wilcox and Bob McAneely had singles.

Larry Hackman, Dave Cousins and John Richardson scored for Victoria.

The Thunderbirds got three goals from Jeff Wilson Saturday. McAneely, Williamson, Buchanan, Norm Park and Mike Darnborough had two each and Bill Cartwright got one.

Shayne Webster, with two goals, and Cousins scored for Vikings.

BOB GOALBY

. . . misses spotlight

Burnaby North Retains High School Boot Title

Bob Dean scored three goals Saturday to pace Burnaby North Vikings to a 6-1 triumph over North Delta Huskies and a second straight B.C. high school soccer championship.

Dean, who collected 25 goals in league play this season, scored the first goal after a minute of play and added two more in the last half of the tournament final at Royal Athletic Park.

His total production for four matches during the three-day tourney was six goals.

Allan Hill, Ken Crompton and Dave Domijan added goals to give Vikings a 4-0 lead before Bill MacCrae scored for Huskies at 33 minutes.

SHUTOUT STRING

Dean scored his second goal by heading in a corner kick by Mike McLenaghen and then broke clear a minute later to thrust the final goal past a hobbling Tony Chursky in the Delta net.

Vikings went through their first three matches with shutout victories over Kamloops, Mount View of Victoria and Cowichan while Huskies chalked up three one-goal decisions—over Mount View, Kamloops and Winston Churchill of Vancouver.

North Delta had four regulars injured and some players limping throughout the final match.

HORNETS EVEN MARK

Mount View Hornets, the Vancouver Island champions, evened their tournament record 2-2 by defeating Abbotsford 2-1 in a consolation game.

Joe Poulton and Doug Marshall scored for Hornets while Tom Matty replied for Abbotsford.

Winston Churchill blanked Cowichan 2-0 on early goals by Jim Anderson and Ed Thomas in a match that decided third spot while Vikings won a morning tussle 4-0 against Cowichan.

Truckers Tie With Braves

Victoria Nixon's Truckers had their victory streak ended at Memorial Arena Sunday but they are still undefeated this season in the Lower Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Nixon's were held to a 4-4 deadlock by Saanich Braves after winning their first four games.

Mutch Morey (2), Lawrie Huck and Mike Smith scored for the Truckers while Tim Bowles, D. Thornton, T. Finaly and Max Miller fired Saanich tallies.

Baylor Sidelined With Heel Injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elgin Baylor will undergo surgery for a torn achilles tendon, sidelinening the Los Angeles Lakers captain until March 1, the National Basketball Association club announced.

Baylor, 36, in his 13th season with the Lakers, suffered the injury Friday when he scored 11 points against Phoenix.

Goalby Claims Prizes But Misses Attention

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Bob Goalby won but—for the third time in as many years—the attention centred elsewhere.

Goalby won the 1968 Masters when Roberto de Vicenzo was disqualified from a tie for first for signing an incorrect scorecard, and de Vicenzo got the attention.

Goalby won the 1969 Robinson Open, the same weekend that Lee Trevino blew a five-stroke lead and Billy Casper won the rich Alcan.

Trevino-Casper-Alcan got the attention.

And Sunday Goalby won the $100,000 Heritage Golf Classic, only to have the spotlight stolen by 20-year-old Lanny Wadkins, who became the first amateur in six years to finish as high as second in a professional event.

Goalby, a 14-year veteran, saved the pride of the touring pros when he fired a final-round 66, five under par on the Harbour Town golf links, and finished with a 72-hole total of 280 for his 10th tour victory.

Wadkins, a 20-year-old Wake Forest student and the current U.S. amateur champion, was alone in second at 284, matching par on the oceanside layout. He had a final-round 68 and was in contention for the top spot until he went two over par on the 11th hole.

From then on, it was all Goalby. But it was the first time since Jim Grant took second in the 1964 Hartford Open that an amateur had finished so high in a regular tour event.

Steve Melnyk also was in contention until he ran afoul on the backside, shooting a 40 to 77. He finished at 290.

Bert Yancey, who shared the third-round lead with Melnyk had even more trouble, shooting an 80 for 293.

Uvic Parking Expansion Opposed

Results of a survey indicate University of Victoria students are opposed to further parking lots on the campus.

About 2,500 students responded to the survey which was conducted by the Environmental Action Group.

The survey was designed to find alternatives to more paved parking lots on the campus.

A spokesman said all survey results won't be known until January.

Jets Collide On Runway

TEL AVIV (AP) — A Trans-World Airlines cargo jetliner loaded with vegetables for Europe crashed head on with another transport plane on the same runway at Lod International Airport before dawn today, killing two ground crew members and injuring two others.

Both planes caught fire and burned, scattering wreckage along the main runway.

Police said the TWA Boeing 707 had barely got its wheels off the runway when an Israeli Stratocruiser appeared in the darkness in front of the cargo plane. The Israeli aircraft was being towed by two men on a tractor.

The American captain tried to avoid a collision but the Boeing's left wing hit the stratocruiser.

Both men on the tractor were killed.

ON ADDICTION

That First Rung To the Big Hook

By Jack Scott

Ten junior high school students from Esquimalt, all or most of them having experimented with drugs, were taken by their teacher the other day to meet some real live dope addicts.

It wasn't a happy experience for a pert, attractive Nanaimo girl named Arlene who has been addicted to heroin for four years and is now valiantly trying to salvage her life.

Scott

"At first I answered their questions seriously," Arlene told a visitor yesterday, "but when I realized they were getting some laughs out of it I just gave up and let the others talk. When I told one of the young girls that it might come down to a choice between a short, unreal life or a long, happy life she laughed and said, 'I'll take the short one. I don't want to be one of those old grannies walking down the street boring myself to death.' When they'd gone I was so mad I went to my room and yelled and screamed at the walls. Their parents don't get through to them. Their teachers don't get through to them. We didn't get through to them either. They were mostly 15 years of age, just children. I'm only 19. But it was like a generation gap."

The encounter between the students and the addicts took place in a ramshackle bungalow hard by Beacon Hill Park where, some six months ago, a 53-year-old one-time alcoholic named Bill Ogston set up a kind of retreat for alcoholics and addicts who are trying to kick their habits. Ogston, a big, calm, optimistic man is without a professional background, but convinced that his effort, which goes under the name of the Pacific Drug Dependency Society, fills a need not yet met by other agencies.

It is, to say the least, a shoe-string operation. The 10 alcoholics and addicts in residence there now pay $80 monthly for room and board. All but one are on social assistance, which leaves them just $15 apiece for any other spending. They cut and sell beach driftwood as a further contribution to Ogston's perilous budget. The visitor is impressed by the congenial boarding-house atmosphere of the place and by a mood of quiet, if grim, determination, common to "the beaten, fragmented people," as someone has called the addicted, who are trying to overcome the statistical odds against rehabilitation.

Bill Ogston is inclined to think that the students got a good deal more from their visit than Arlene, who is the only woman in residence now, gives them credit for, and that the presence of their teacher might have caused them to mask their real reactions.

Certainly one impression that must remain with them is the terrifying ease with which a casual drug trip may become the long, hard road of addiction.

"When we talked of this, these kids who are smoking marijuana said, 'Oh, no it would never happen to me'. That's exactly what I said when I was 15," Arlene told the visitor, "It's so easy. You get in with some new friends, they roll up a couple, you enjoy it. Or maybe you just try it because you don't belong, you're not in the club if you don't. Sure, I liked it. I smoked for kicks at first. Then I began to depend upon it to give me confidence. I went to school high on grass nearly every morning. Couldn't talk to the teacher without it. I got to thinking that I couldn't do anything straight. One of the 15-year-old students who was in here was going through the same thing. He told us he'd brought his grade level from a D to a B by staying on grass. He wouldn't believe where it can go from there. With me, well, I just got bored with getting to that certain height when I was stoned. I began to go up the ladder, higher and higher, acid, liquor, speed, heroin. I was hooked before I knew it. That could happen to any of these kids who came to see us. They're already on the first rung."

With Gary, another of the residents, it was more or less an accident. Gary, originally from Vancouver, is 29 years of age, a former logger, a quiet-mannered, good looking man who has been addicted to heroin for 10 years and calls it a miracle that he's still alive.

"A friend asked me one day if I'd like to try marijuana," he remembers. "It was a time when it was just getting to be the thing to do, you know? We went to this guy who was supposed to have the stuff. He said, 'I'm out of grass, but how'd you like to try some horse?' Sure, we said, why not? I was hooked in a week.

"They talk about 'drug personalities', but I think anyone can be in that category once he becomes dependent. Even when I went logging I had to have the stuff with me. I used a cap a day — $20 a cap if you bought it here, $15 in Vancouver. For me, it was a way out of loneliness, a way to black out my worries and anxieties. If I was on a fix now I could sit here for hours and talk to you or anybody or I could sit alone and think about nothing. It was an escape from reality. That's the hard part now — getting back to reality. That's always the hard part."

It's unlikely that the visiting students could have missed the message, either, in Gary's account of a not uncommon experience w[illegible] users of heroin.

★ ★ ★

"It was in August, 1966, in a motel in Vancouver," he recalled, "I never knew whether it was a bad dose or whether it was because I was drinking so much I didn't realize I was over-dosing myself. I've no memory of becoming unconscious. It must be what dying is like. My girl saw me turn blue and stop breathing and called a doctor. I was unconscious for three months and in the hospital for 20 months after that. My muscular system was all shot, all seized up. Couldn't move any part of my body. Couldn't speak. I'm still having operations to get back the use of my legs. I told the kids that's what can happen with heroin if it doesn't kill you. I had to tell them, too, that I was back on it even before I'd left to the hospital."

The unspeakable agonies of withdrawal are as familiar to Arlene.

"When you've run out of money or when there's no supply available, that's when you really pay the price," she said. "I can remember mornings, so many mornings, when I didn't think I could live and when I didn't really care. Not suicidal, you understand, just beyond caring. I stayed in bed once for four days, so cold I had to have about ten blankets on me, shaking, unable to sleep, unable to eat, unable to walk out to look for help, doubled up with stomach cramps. The terrible thing is that you never forget those times and yet, no matter how hard you try, you never forget the way out. Even now, it's still in my head to fix."

"That's the one thing that you can't get through to these kids," Gary said gravely, "and maybe it's the one thing that they need to know most. You can tell them the dangers, you can tell them what it will do to their lives, but you can't tell them that once you're hooked you're never really free again."

ALL ALDERMANIC SEATS CONTESTED

C. Saanich Returns Mayor

Central Saanich Mayor Archibald Galbraith was re-elected by acclamation today when nominations closed with no opposition to him.

It was the only mayoralty vacancy among the seven municipalities on southern Vancouver Island. All other mayors are in the middle of two-year terms.

Municipal and school board election day is Saturday, Dec. 12.

Aldermanic contests were assured in all municipalities except Sidney, where Ald. H. H. Perry and Ald. W. W. Gardner were re-elected without opposition.

School trustee elections were assured in Greater Victoria and Sooke.

On the Saanich Peninsula, John Pennington was returned by acclamation for the two-year seat from Saanich but John J. Armstrong and Patricia Peach will contest the one-year vacancy. In North Saanich, Ald. Trevor Davis will challenge board chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott. Zachary Hamilton won by acclamation in Central Saanich and so did Harry Tobin in Sidney.

In Greater Victoria, where there are five at-large vacancies on the board instead of the old ward system of voting, 12 persons are seeking seats.

The two latest entries in the Victoria city aldermanic election were former alderman Robert Baird and Charles Mowbray, a janitorial services contractor who ran unsuccessfully in last year's election.

Last entry in Saanich was John Roberts, unsuccessful when he ran last year.

In Oak Bay, R. G. McKay, Harold Allen, George Murtagh and Elmer McEwen brought the field to eight candidates for three seats.

Late filers in Esquimalt included Helen O'Malia, Ada Barnes and John Rogers who joined three others in the election for three aldermen.

Referendums will be held in:

- Victoria, on a non-money expression of opinion on the potential purchase of $2 million of waterfront property;
- Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, for a $750,000 ice arena beside the Centennial swimming pool;
- Sidney, for a $55,000 senior citizens activity centre and $40,000 swimming pool;
- North and South Pender Islands, for $50,000 to establish and equip a volunteer fire department;

'SUB' OFF GROUND

After successful trials in waters off Vancouver the Canadian Armed Forces' first submersible, the SDL-1, left by Hercules aircraft for Halifax today.

Commanded by Lieut. Barry Ridgewell, the SDL-1 can be used to locate submarines in distress, inspection of underwater cables, recovery of equipment in deep water, and surveillance of the Continental Shelf.

The 25-foot vessel was built at a cost of $780,000 by International Hydrodynamics of Vancouver.

Marine Centre Pressed

Victoria will send a "strong" submission to Ottawa asking that the federal government's planned oceanographic institute be located here instead of in Vancouver, Mayor Courtney Haddock said today.

Haddock said there is "no reason at all" why the institute should go to the mainland, as suggested last week by a high federal official.

W. M. Cameron, director of the federal marine sciences branch, had said the planned institute's proximity to two universities and marine industries in Vancouver would be more important than availability to shipping in Victoria.

'NO REASON'

Haddock said the city's submission would be completed later today.

The University of Victoria's biology department has "everything needed" for co-operation with the institute, and Vancouver's two large university's are "no reason" to locate it on the mainland.

The submission, to be sent shortly, will make a "very strong case for Victoria" getting the institute, he said.

Low-Rental Opening Set

Hampton House, the 81-suite senior citizens apartment in Saanich, will be officially opened Sunday Dec. 13 by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

The low-rental building was initiated by Saanich four years ago, with the federal and provincial governments paying the $633,785 capital cost.

It is located at Hampton and Seaton, across from Hampton Park, and interested residents will be free to view the apartment on the official opening day. Time of the ceremony is 2:30 p.m.

Angry, Sports-Minded Parents Ready To Make Waves in Unruffled Oak Bay

By PAT DUFOUR

A quiet anger and frustration is building up among many Oak Bay residents, particularly those with children, no longer content to live in the only Greater Victoria municipality without a recreation centre.

Determined to get some action, a group of them attended recreation commission and council meetings this month.

Some of them are unwilling to accept council's advice that the only way in which a centre can be financed is through the sale of the Victoria Riding Academy land, slated for high-rises and a minimum going price of $1.3 million.

They come up with what they believe are workable alternatives for financing.

Their pride is obviously blistered as they talk of the way in which smaller communities have achieved the goal which eludes Oak Bay.

Arch Courtnall, 2546 Dalhousie, tells of the way in which Lake Cowichan financed a $450,000 skating and curling rink, due to open within days.

"They (the residents) had been holding meetings with council for years. Nothing happened. Then a group of businessmen got together and went from door to door promoting the sale of debentures.

They sold $396,000 worth of $300 debentures guaranteed at 9¼ per cent and will mature in 10 years.

★

By raising this amount, the tax increase was held at $12 a year.

Courtnall doesn't hold council responsible.

"You'll never get it (the complex) by blaming council. It's up to the people."

Bob Dyke, 1259 Oliver, is another of those that feel other avenues of financing should be explored.

"We shouldn't be putting all our financial eggs in one basket. We must do something positive."

A resident of Oak Bay for three years, he adds: "I've never lived in an area that's been so negative."

★

Dyke coaches ice hockey in Victoria and says that more than 100 boys were turned away from the Memorial Arena last year and this year there are 63 more enrolled than rink facilities allow.

Bert Bertoia, 2382 Heron, also believes that alternative financing may be necessary. He suggests borrowing money against the Victoria Riding Academy ground. He also advocates an immediate program of gradual purchase of land needed for the centre.

"We should start beginning to buy it — bit by bit — and not wait until prices skyroket beyond reason."

They and others agree the facilities needed most are an ice rink and a swimming pool. (Oak Bay plans to build these adjacent to Oak Bay junior and senior high schools when the money is available.)

But they also argue that the complex should include a curling rink because revenue from it would help subsidize public and figure skating, as well as minor hockey.

People in the business are divided on this.

Doug Anderson, 2976 Ashdowne, former Cougar coach and now manager of the new centre at Lake Cowichan, agrees that curling rinks are money-makers.

★

J. Iannarelli, manager of the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre, says they are not — and cites figures to back up his conviction. He says compared to $30,000 gained in curling fees, for the same period between $40,000 and $50,000 was realized from skating, plus an additional $30,000 netted from casual rentals when groups of youngsters and adults "chip in" to rent the ice for an hour or so at a time.

Whether curling pays — or doesn't — all agree that there is a desperate need for more skating rinks in the area.

★

Jack Morgan, director of community reaction services for Victoria, estimates that 25 per cent of the people who use the Memorial Arena and the Crystal Garden are from Oak Bay.

In round figures this means four programs that have to be subsidized to survive. In 1969, as an example, minor hockey was underwritten to the tune of $17,138, figure skating was $5,930 in the red, swimming had to be assisted by an additional $24,420 and the public school swimming program cost an additional $8,848.

In round figures this means that Oak Bay users' share of subsidization for these four programs was $14,084.

DIRECTOR OF COSMETIC FIRM SAYS:

'Anything I Can't Do in Three Minutes, I Won't Do'

TORONTO (CP) — Your makeup doesn't have to be in the same color category as your costume, says Carol Phillips, a former editor of Vogue magazine.

"If you're wearing a purple costume, break the old-fashioned rule that says your lipstick should be in the same family shade," she advised. "I wear coral lipstick with purple."

The old color range that said blondes should wear only certain makeup colors is dead also. "It wasn't real," said Miss Phillips.

She also said she believes that wearing the same lipstick and cosmetic colors every day can be boring. And there were times when a woman might be physically low and need a bounce to make her feel better. She should change her cosmetic colors, especially her lipstick, Miss Phillips said — choose something unusual and different.

But a woman doesn't need to take hours doing her face. "Anything I can't do in three minutes, I won't do."

Miss Phillips was in Toronto this fall to introduce a new line of cosmetics.

ROUTINE GREW BORING

Miss Phillips jumped from her Vogue editorial post into a job as vice-president and director of this new firm.

"I got bored doing the same things month after month as managing editor so Vogue put me on special projects and I interviewed top men in scientific feilds," she said.

She wrote an article on menopause pills, then met and talked with a well-known beauty expert and became convinced that much could be done to help women with skin problems. Then two years ago she joined the newly formed firm, called Clinique.

Miss Phillips said women have to know what type of skin they have so as to use the items best suited to them. Clinique uses a question-and-answer board that tabulates the skin type.

All skins fall into four categories, she said. There is the fair, fine skin, one that is slightly stronger, one that is considerably stronger and ages slowly but is often oily, and lastly an extremely strong skin, the Mediterranean type that cannot be hurt by the sun and is usually moist.

ANCESTRY IS KEY

On the basis of a woman's answers to such questions as the real color of her hair, the size of pores and so on, her skin type will be determined.

What kind of skin you have and what allergies depend a lot on your grandparents. But Miss Phillips offered a test for suspected cosmetic allergies that any woman can try herself. Daub a bit of, say, eyeliner on the inside of your wrist. Bandage it. Do this for three days. If you're allergic to that eyeliner you'll have a slight rash.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Have you already used up all that money I earned you yesterday?"

DEAR ABBY . . .

Tip Came Late

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Something happened in this town which I think shoud be advertised, nationwide. An elderly gentleman who lived alone in a hotel room died, and in his will he left a lot of money to a waitress. He said she had waited on him with a smile even tho he never left a big tip. In fact, he said there were times when he didn't leave a tip at all, but she still gave him wonderful service.

So, please tell waiters and waitresses that this should be a lesson to them. They should give good service, with a smile, whether the person is a good tipper or not, because some folks don't tip while they're living, but they leave a lot in their wills. Dallas.

DEAR DALLAS: What you say may be true, but that's a long time to wait for a tip.

DEAR ABBY: Your cold comment, "Children owe thanks to no one — including Mother" prompts this letter to tell you how wrong you are. Don't you realize that the trouble with our young people today is that they think their lives are their "own" and they don't owe anybody — including their parents — anything?

Parents spend thousands of dollars and roughly 20 years of their lives on raising a child. Don't you think they are entitled to a little thanks?

I work with high school girls, and when one of them gripes to me about her mother, I tell her to take a large piece of paper and draw a line down the center, and on one side she should write "Things My Mother Does for Me" and on the other side, "Things I Do for My Mother."

Needless to say, the result is rather lopsided. After that, I don't hear any more gripes from that girl about "Mother." South Gate.

DEAR SOUTH: Rearing children is a responsibility parents ask for when they become parents, and the time and money spent on rearing children are not in my view "gifts" for which parents should expect thanks. No parent expects his child to "do" as much for him as he has done for his child. But when children grow up and choose to become parents themselves, they will in turn do for their children what their parents did for them. And if parents expect "thanks" for rearing children who came into the world besause they wanted a faimly—shame on them.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. I have a girl friend I'll call Terry who broke up with her boy friend I'll call Pete a few months ago. Pete has been calling me but I don't dare go out with him because I know Terry will feel hurt if she finds out about it because she still likes him. I would like to go out with Pete, but knowing how Terry feels about him I can't bring myself to do it.

Pete thinks I am being very foolish because he was completely finished with Terry before he even thought of calling me. Also, I never did one thing to attract his attention before or after they broke up. Can you advise me? Tempted.

DEAR TEMPTED: I think you're foolish, too. If your conscience is clear, go out with him.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Royal Closet Yields Skeleton of Intriguing Love Story

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of Canada's most intriguing love stories has been retold in a manner which solves most of the past mysteries, leaves the lovers—Queen Victoria's father and his mistress, Madame de St. Laurent—with sharply enhanced character, and leaves history buffs with many spiked legends.

The Prince and His Lady is the competent work of Mollie Gillen, a persistent Australian who has already established her Canadian identity as a magazine editor and author on sujects that include the Massey family.

She was challenged by the contradictory legends about Prince Edward, Duke of Kent, and his companion of more than 27 years — and by a deep sense of romance.

She spent five years sifting through correspondence, baptismal records, old newspaper files and even old graveyards in Gibraltar, Quebec, Halifax, England, France, Belgium and the West Indies in her meticulous and exhaustive search for convincing evidence to support her lively tale of a soldier prince who suffered all the hearbreaks with few of the rewards of royal birth.

She is especially critical of the theories of another Candian author — McKenzie Porter — whose Overture to Victoria of a few years ago she claims contributed to the historical confusion.

The facts, as supported by Mrs. Gillen's painstaking assembly of solid evidence and her logical conclusions, are that contrary to the popular and colored tales of the past, the prince and his lady were never married; they never had children; she died at 69 in Paris in relative comfort and not in a convent or at the age of 106 in Quebec.

▣

And, perhaps showing the less — purposeful research efforts of previous authors, Queen Victoria apparently didn't destroy the evidence because Mrs. Gillen won the confidence of the present Queen and entry to the Royal Archives at Windsor where she helped herself to documentation, some of which supplied the most intimate details of the relationship.

However the carefully marshalled evidence was not able to provide an explanation for the name which the prince called his mistress from the start. She had no family connection with any St. Laurent and the liaison was started in Gibraltar before he knew about his posting to the Quebec fortress on the St. Lawrence.

The prince and his circle invariably referred to her as Madame de St. Laurent. A few documents also carry the letter "J" and when she stood as godmother for a son of the famous de Salaberry family of Quebec, someone had inserted the name Julia beside de St. Laurent so it is surmised he did call her Julie as has always been popularly believed.

The book provides a lively picture of Canada in the late 1700s, and when the author couldn't get personal descriptions by the prince and his lady of events and experiences, she quotes from contemporaries to fill in the gaps.

The prince emerges as a stickler for detail but not the cruel disciplinarian of legend, especially when judged by the standards of the time. He was six feet two, blonde, blue-eyed, "engaging and affable."

He got off on the wrong foot with his prudish father — George III — by piling up some rather modest debts in Switzerland, where in a single youthful folly he fathered a child that was still-born and whose mother died.

He was invariably treated with niggardly concern by the treasury. When he several times lost his possessions by misadventure he was not treated like other officers and no restitution was ever made, though his loss was finally acknowledged when he married the German princess who became Queen Victoria's mother.

But during his career in Canada the prince improved the fortifications and military effectiveness of both Quebec and Halifax; made a hazardous overland trip to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, in winter, losing two sleighs filled with his baggage through the ice of Lake Champlain; turned some anti-royalist feeling in the still-boiling revolutionary town of Boston to a first step toward British-American rapprochment, and fought a successful campaign in the West Indies against the French.

He was obviously the first important Briton to intercede successfully in political racial feelings in Quebec, where he harangued rioters to cease making "odious" distinctions between English and French and to look upon themselves only as Canadians.

And he retired amid cheers and at least temporary understanding. This was roughly 150 years before a modern Governor-General — John Buchan — was to win wide approval for making a similar statement.

Alphonsine Therese Bernardine Julie de St. Laurent de Montgenet, Baronne de Fortisson — to list all her names — was born in France near the Swiss border in 1760 — seven years earlier than the prince. She was daughter of a highway engineer with some standing in his community, and was mistress to two French aristorcrats when still in her 20s.

She has been described as dark-haired, blue-eyed, rather small, but elegant, well bred and sensible, and the prince himself spoke of her "pretty face." Two portraits are left behind — one depicting her as a youthful beauty, the other in portly middle age.

She lived with the prince in Gibraltar, Quebec, Halifax twice and England in a peaceful and loving existence until the parting came in Brussels. And the romance follows her as she patiently served the prince through dreary Quebec and Halifax winters.

There were frustrations too. There was the time when the prince, returning to Halifax from his West Indies campaign, found that Madame de St. Laurent, who had been left behind several months earlier to find a ship for England, had actually only been able to get passage a few hours before his arrival. And the ships passed unknowingly at the entrance to the big harbor.

▣

It was on this voyage that her ship was chased by a French man o' war, and her capture might have led to a fate similar to that suffered by other aristocrats of the period of the French Revolution.

They spent more years together in Halifax, in England and finally Brussels where the sad parting came. And Madame de St. Laurent made her exit from her prince's life with the dignity she had shown all through their relationship.

She went to Paris to live out her life surrounded by members of her family and mutual friends of the prince.

He married the German princess and hardly had produced an heir to the throne in the young baby Victoria when he died in Devon — a few days before his father the King, who had long been confined by mental illness. A regency was in power.

Mrs. Gillen makes a strong appeal for sympathy for the prince's decision to part from Madame de St. Laurent. "Before too harsh a judgment is made," she writes, "one must at least consider some of the realities.

"The rules of royal marital behaviour had always offered him the possibility of the action he now contemplated and opened the way for the social approval that was denied to his truly devoted relationship with a woman of charm and dignity.

At 50, with the fires of passion cooled and the batterings of fortune and debts blunting his resistance, with the opportunity now presented to him appearing partly a call on his sense of duty, partly a way out of financial straits, it would have taken a man of heroic proportions to resist the temptation. . . .

"And Madame de St. Laurent herself understood and accepted what he did."

MARTINE . . . at Orly airfield

Saigon Cinderella: A Modern Fairy Tale

BANGUI, Central African Republic (AP) — Until last week, Martine, 17, sold cigarettes on the streets of Saigon and lived in a shack fashioned from flattened beer cans. Today, she is the daughter of a president and riding in a limousine.

The girl is the long-lost child of Gen. Jean Bedel Bokassa, president of the Central African Republic. Twenty years ago he was a non-commissioned officer in the French colonial army in Indochina.

When Bokassa was in the French garrison in Saigon, he became the father of a child by Nguyen Thi Hue. When Bokassa left Indochina he lost track of her. This year, with the assistance of the South Vietnamese foreign ministry and the French consulate, a search was begun.

Martine was found and her mother had documents proving she was Bokassa's child.

Arrangements were made to bring Martine, who speaks only Vietnamese, to Bangui, the capital of this land-locked country of 1.5 million.

When Martine arrived in Bangui on a flight from Paris at 3 a.m. all the capital's diplomats, civil servants and cabinet members were waiting at the airport for her.

Her father, whom she could not remember, sobbed as he embraced her.

Bokassa then introduced her to his other children and her stepmother.

Cream-Filled Roll Replaces Breakfast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States agriculture department has approved a new, enriched breakfast roll to take the place of fruit juice and bread or cereal served at schools and day-care centres.

The department said the fortified roll includes all the vitamins and other nutrients found in one slice of bread or one-half cup of cereal plus one-half cup of fruit juice.

The bread, cereal and fruit menu is the minimum recommended, along with milk, for school breakfasts and day-care child feeding.

The food and nutrition service described the product as a fortified, baked roll having a cream-like centre. Specifications for the roll are being made available to schools and other institutions so that they can order the rolls from bakeries.

Officials said they had no estimate of the cost of the product per serving.

The spokesman said there is no similar product on the commercial market.

The design of this open stairwell makes it an architectural asset.

Stairwell Brightens Up

By PAULINE GRAVES

If you are planning to build a two-storey house, give a thought to the stairwell as more than a means of going from one floor to another. The height and comparative narrowness lend themselves to dramatic design, a concept far from that of yesteryear when stairways generally were steep and dark. The exception, of course, were those in large homes, where the scale permitted a dramatic and graceful sweep into the entry hall. Smaller homes fared not so well.

The stairwell pictured here by architect Knowlton Fernald, Jr., demonstrates the effectiveness of good design. Instead of a dark well, this is light and open, each step a separate entity bolted onto a centre support. With the elimination of traditional risers, one can see between the stair treads which gives a light, floating effect. And the balustrades echo the light look, each made of 1"x1" metal uprights, one on each side of a tread. The railings, equally as light, are made of 1"x4"s, and almost geometric in their precision.

To soften the straight lines, indoor plants in handsome containers stand at the bottom step and also at the top. In addition, carpeting each step separately with a semi-shag pile also keeps the design from becoming too rigid, and relates the stairs to the rooms above and below.

Another practical advantage of this open approach to stairs is the aid it gives to heat and to air circulation between floors.

Folding Bed Has Regal Ancestor

CHICAGO (UPI) — The next time somebody around your house complains about sleeping on a folding bed, tell him of the regality of it all.

The great beds found in the tomb of Tutankhamen, Pharoh of Egypt, were put together with hooks so that they could be dismantled or folded.

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the ancient Egyptians had folding beds for precisely the same reason as you — to facilitate storage and transportation.

If there is still a complaint, mention that the pharoh didn't have a pillow. The ancient Egyptians used headrests — made of wood.

They Have Seen Thy Mighty Power

PORT McNEILL — Chamber of Commerce members here suspect Premier W. A. C. Bennett is more than plugged into God.

They had, with the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, protested on Nov. 20 to Bennett that he had broken his promise to build a road link between Kelsey Bay and Beaver Cove.

A few days previous, the government had called for tenders on the first five miles of the road. The announcement warned interested contractors to view the site soon — before heavy snowfall covered the ground.

THEY LAUGHED

North Island officials laughed, saying that the annual snowfall is only about half an inch, a chamber press release noted.

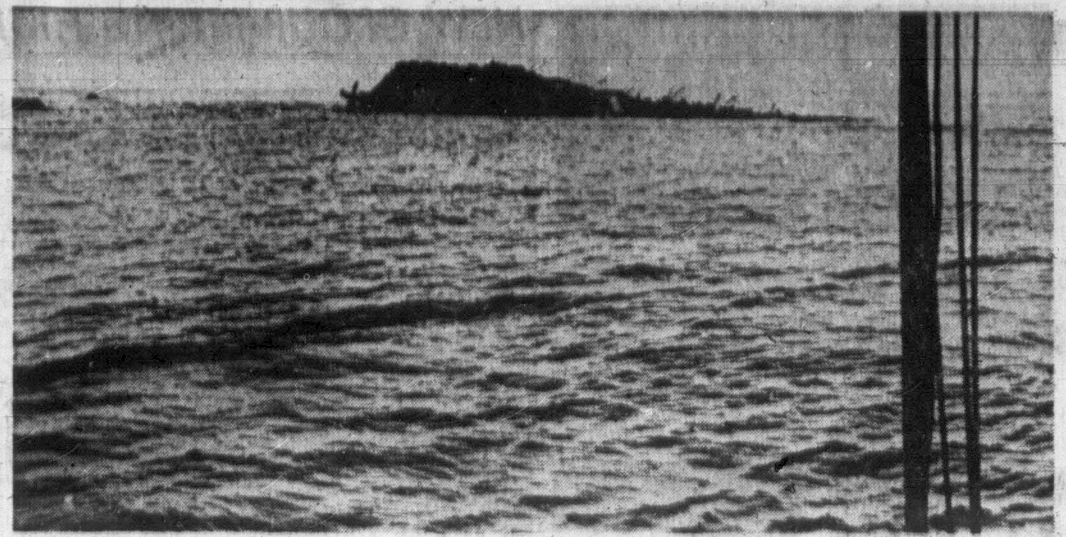
Within hours of the protest, the temperatures plunged, the blizzards began and "at this writing have not let up."

The Port McNeill and District Chamber of Commerce "pleads with Mr. Bennett that this white plague is sufficient. That we should have doubted the power of Mr. Bennett's promises in spite of any evidence of the apparent failure of this promise, seems in retrospect a gross lack of faith."

Therefore, "we do humbly confess that we have erred and strayed and that we have doubted.

"Turn again from the fierce whiteness of thine anger, Mr. Bennett, Sir.

"Make our land constructable and loggable once again. Thou that bringest the snow by mere press release, surely thou canst create roads as out of nothing and bring to pass thy promises."



One of Heads in the Water Near Sinking Lancastria Is Alonzo Wass

SURVIVOR RECALLS SINKING

Near Death, Strawberry Vision

By DONNA CLEMENTS

COBBLE HILL — While he was swimming away from the sinking Lancastria during the Second World War, Alonza Wass felt all he wanted was a soft-boiled egg, a slice of thin bread and butter, a cup of tea, strawberry jam, if possible, and his wife.

Thirty years later, the 65-year-old Cobble Hill resident said that is still his post-war policy.

Wass is one of 2,000 survivors from the 16,000-ton Lancastria, which was sunk 4 p.m. on June 16, 1940, while lying at anchor off the west coast of France.

"More than 4,000 men, women and children perished after the ship was bombed by an enemy plane. It took 15 minutes until the ship was beneath the water," Wass said.

•

"I was a sergeant in the Royal Army Ordinance Corps stationed in France during the fall of France. We were being evacuated to England."

Before his nightmare experience Wass said he saw everything as black and white. "After that I realized that there were other colors in the world."

While the ship was going down he saw thousands of people in the oil-blackened water on the port side of the ship. Wass said he knew he would survive.

WASS
. . . no problem serious

"All the time I was casting off my clothes until I had nothing on but underpants. I didn't panic.

"From the moment I made the decsion to leave the ship when it was at a 45-degree angle I realized no problem is serious. We take life too serious."

At a distance from the ship Wass said he looked back and was sickened by the oil-covered faces he could see.

•

He held on to an oar, which had hit his knee, after he had swum a distance, along with a fully-dressed soldier, minus his boots, until they came across a life raft from the ship.

"We were then picked up by a French troller and later boarded the HMS Havelock which had approximately 170 survivors from the shipwreck. "Other survivors were picked up by other boats in the area," he said.

Wass, who has written books on building construction, plans to write his own chapter to add to a novel written on the experiences from other survivors.

An annual anniversary muster is held in London in memory of the victims who died after the bombing of the Lancastria.

Since his close encounter with death Wass said, "I have and am living a full life and have enjoyed every minute of it."

Hurt Woman Helped By Cool Thinking

POWELL RIVER — A New York woman is recovering in hospital here following a rescue in which her companion summoned help by using a boat battery to power a radio at an abandoned logging camp.

The woman, Lucy Brown, 25, was injured Saturday when her hair caught in a winch aboard a pleasure craft about 30 miles north of Powell River. Part of her scalp was torn away and her nose fractured.

Tim Biggins, operator of the boat, put in at the abandoned camp on the east side of Homfray Channel on the mainland. There he found a shortwave radio, but the battery was missing.

The Pacific Rescue Centre in Victoria said Biggins removed the battery from the boat to power the radio and was able to reach Campbell River radio telephone. He asked for a rescue boat and emergency medical instructions.

An RCMP patrol boat from Powell River was sent to the camp, picking up a doctor en route.

Hospital officials said Sunday the woman's condition was satisfactory. It was not established why the boat had been cruising in the area.

Boating Family Rescued

LADYSMITH (CP) — A family of four was rescued uninjured Sunday when a fishboat burned to the waterline off Valdez Island on the east coast of Vancouver Island.

Search officials identified the burned craft as the Skyband and said operator F. A. Schmalz, his wife and two children abandoned the burning boat and took to a rubber liferaft.

They were taken from the water by a vessel sent from a marina at Ladysmith. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Black Panther Meet Ends Unproductively

WASHINGTON (WP)—Delegates to the Black Panther-sponsored Revolutionary People's Constitutional Convention left Washington Sunday without a promised constitution and with little else to show for two days' apparently aimless activity on the sidewalks along Washington's 16th Street, N.W.

But the planned workshops were never held because the Panther organizers were not able to obtain an indoor convention site. Instead, the majority of the delegates spent Friday and Saturday afternoon sitting or wandering along 16th Street.

The delegates also did not participate in the writing of a constitution. That work organizers had explained, was to be done in the workshops. Instead, the participants were told Saturday that the constitution would be read to them for ratification on Saturday night.

When Saturday night came, the constitution was only outlined by Michael C. Tabor of New York City, who said the main elements were proportional representation, the outlawing of racial exclusion and the elimination of "elements of oppression."

A Panther spokesman said Sunday that this outline had been drawn up by the Panthers after a convention in Philadelphia in September.

Panther minister of defence Huey P. Newton said Saturday night, however, that the constitutional convention would have to be held at another time, after the revolutionary groups had "liberated" Washington.

Friends of Frank Fontaine, singer-comedian and the one-time Crazy Guggenheim of Jackie Gleason Show fame, will honor him with a testimonial dinner Dec. 8. Fontaine, who is recovering from a heart attack he suffered two months ago, was born in Massachusetts but his family's roots were in St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Eamon de Valera, at 88 the world's oldest active statesman, was reported by friends in Dublin Sunday to be considering retirement from his largely-honorary post as president of the Irish Republic. It is believed this would pave the way for controversial Prime Minister Jack Lynch to move up to the presidency.

Manila slum dwellers, most of them living in one-room hovels constructed of scrap metal and packing cases, were told Sunday there's more to life than money. Pope Paul, in his stop at the Tondo slum, told them they were made for a "higher good . . . a kingdom of Heaven."

Negro U.S. entertainer Eartha Kitt, who says she is in her late 30s, announced over a British radio network last week she is going to marry a wealthy Danish industrialist, Ole Broendum-Nielsen. And Broendum-Nielsen said shortly after that there's been no talk of marriage . . . the relationship is only at the stage "where the other person seems very interesting."

FONTAINE

Canada's Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand denied Sunday in a television interview from Ottawa that he ever said there were 3,000 members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec. "But I'm sure the FLQ has a lot of support in many organizations in Quebec, and if ever there is real trouble you will see how many there are."

A youth who said he was a Yippie — a member of Youth International Party — threw himself at former British prime minister Harold Wilson during a luncheon in London Saturday in what he called a protest against Wilson and others "eating and collecting their shillings while millions of people are starving." The youth, who identified himself as Tom Ludd, was not charged.

NEW GROUP RIDING HIGH

Carpenters Get Third Gold Disc

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can a performer whose early idol was Liberace find success in the pop music field?

The answer is a resounding yes, and the proof is the three gold records now owned by a new recording group called the Carpenters.

"They're a brother-sister team from Downey, Calif., and they recently were awarded the gold records for more than $1 million in sales for their smash singles, Close to You with 2.5 million copies sold world-wide, and We're Only Just Begun, which has sold 1.3 million copies. Their album already has racked up 750,000 sales.

The Carpenters are Karen, 20, singer and drummer, and Richard, 24, pianist and arranger.

They were born in New Haven, Conn., where their father, a printer, imbued them with swing-era records from his collection.

"I grew up with music, and I took piano lessons, but I didn't like them and I quit," Richard recalled. "I was interested in Les Paul's music, and Liberace really got me hepped up. About 12 years ago I started taking piano again and I continued with it, even studying at Yale while I was in high school."

The Carpenter family moved to California, and Richard played jazz in clubs and bars to put himself through California State College at Long Beach. His little sister insisted on tagging along, and she took up the drums so she could be part of the group.

The pair enlisted a bass player to form the Carpenter Trip, which proved proficient enough to win a Battle of the Bands contest in the Hollywood Bowl in 1966. The group recorded two songs for a major company, but no disc was released.

Richard Carpenter tinkered some more with the group's sound and managed to make the most of Karen's strong, pleasant voice, backed with ear-pleasing harmonics. The big break?

"It's as corny as this: A friend of a friend of a friend referred us to Jack Dougherty at A and M Records," said Richard. "He liked what we did, and we recorded an album. It did nothing, but a single, Ticket to Ride, sold 200,000 and made some noise for us. Then we ran into Burt Bacharach."

The composer admired the Carpenters' work and suggested that the youngsters try a song of his that had been recorded by Dionne Warwick, Dusty Springfield and others, but had failed to catch on. The number: Close to You.

The hit brought appearances for the Carpenters on Johnny Carson, Ed Sullivan, Andy Williams, Don Knotts shows and a Peggy Fleming special, and now they're planning their own special. They have more dates than they can fulfil, and the money is rolling in. Their only extravagance so far is a new family home in Downey.

Slow Economy, Positive Tack Credited in Teacher Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — The slow economy and a positive approach to bargaining helped settle most 1971 teachers' salary agreements, James Killeen, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, said Sunday.

"We were concerned with the state of the economy and we approached the bargaining with an attitude of good faith and good will," he said in an interview.

Concern over these two factors aided teachers in 77 B.C. school districts to arrive at contract settlements giving them average pay increases of 7.8 per cent, he said.

Mr. Killeen said three districts — Kitimat, Vancouver Island North and Maple Ridge—have had their salary disputes referred to compulsory arbitration.

He said this figure compares favorably with the 58 that had to be sent to arbitration last year.

DISPUTES ASSESSMENT

Mr. Killeen said he disagreed with the assessment of negotiations by Peter C. D. Powell, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

Mr. Powell said last week a major reason why the contracts had been reached easily was because of the teachers' drive to improve their pension plan.

"It seems likely that teachers did not want to make too much fuss over salaries when they are in the middle of a big campaign," he said.

Mr. Killeen said Powell was "extracting from the facts what he wants to believe."

He added: "It burns me up that anybody would try to attach this kind of a meaning to this settlement."

B.C. Teachers recently voted 88 per cent in favor of a strike unless the provincial government improves their pensions.

Both Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Provincial Secretary Wesley Black have promised revisions or improvements in the teachers' pension plan, so teachers will await such changes before deciding whether to act on the strike endorsement.

Tourist Firms Seek Mercury Poison Facts

By RON SUDLOW

THUNDER BAY Ont. (CP) — A plea for facts on mercury contamination of Ontario waterways rather than half-hearted government apologies was made today by Leo Shapiro, president of the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association.

Mr. Shapiro, a tourist camp operator from Fort Frances, Ont., told the Association's 43rd annual convention:

"Government must give us facts so that we can go into the market place this winter with a positive sales approach rather than a half-hearted apology for half truth and rumors.

"Government must take a positive position of responsibility to see that individual members of our industry are fully and properly compensated by the polluting industries where the source of such industrial pollution can be clearly pinpointed."

Fishing guides and camp operators have just completed a frustrating season. Mercury polluaion from industry resulted in "fish for fun" programs because anglers could not eat their catches in many areas.

"One thing is clear," Mr. Shapiro said." The outfitter in Northern Ontario is scared because for the first time in his life he is threatened by something that is so big he cannot handle it himself.

"The magnitude of the implications of this many-faceted situation is so great for the northern outfitter that the combined problems of our entire past history . . . are dwarfed to comparative nothingness.

"Our own and our government's colossal naivity on the subject of pollution is an infamous scandal of 1970 and it will have to be the foundation and inspiration for thoroughly correlated programs for the next decade or longer."

NOTES OTHER EFFECTS

Mercury contamination's effect on the industry's economy was reflected in other areas of Mr. Shapiro's report.

He called for "more realistic understanding by government" in providing financial assistance to small camp operators to help upgrade their facilities.

He also criticized new minimum-wage regulations which mean semi-isolated outfitters now must pay "a half-interested youngster" $99 a week to do camp chores.

The result, he said, "could be the widespread denial of summer jobs to youngsters and other unskilled help."

And he blamed a drop in association membership on increased dues but urged members "no matter how bad your business was in 1970" to stay in the association.

Mercury contamination is expected to be the dominant theme of the convention, which ends Thursday. A forum on the subject will be held Tuesday.

Ontario cabinet members Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, Allan Lawrence, minister of mines, and James Auld, minister of tourism and information, are also expected to discuss pollution in their addresses to delegates.

THE WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Some clearing occurred along the northern mainland and locally over Vancouver Island during the night but elsewhere in B.C. skies remained cloudy. Snow continued in nearly all sections of the interior while most coastal areas had showers of wet snow. Strong northerly winds which produced gusts to 38 m.p.h. at Prince George marked the arrival of a fresh supply of cold Arctic air.

A slow moving depression near northern Vancouver Island will maintain showers of rain or snow over the south coast today and Tuesday. The northern mainland will be mainly clear and cold but snow showers will persist over the Charlottes. Snow in the interior will decrease to a few flurries tonight and partial clearing will occur in the Cariboo on Tuesday. Gusty northerly winds and decreasing temperatures will spread southward through the interior today and tonight.

'We're Rich,' Shouts Judy As Game Ends

EDMONTON (CP) — "We're rich," cried Judy Sneddon as the gun sounded Saturday to end the Grey Cup football game, with Montreal Alouettes 23-10 victoris over Calgary Stampeders.

Her husband Frank had just won $70,000, first prize in the Manitoba centennial sweepstakes based on the Canadian Football League classic.

"I told you if you married me you would be lucky," Judy said.

"They're just beautiful," she said after watching the Alouettes crush Calgary on a rented color television set.

She reminded Frank, a 24-year-old automobile salesman, that he had promised to go to church every Sunday if Montreal won.

"Either way, I would have won," Frank said, "but I guess that woman in Winnipeg was going through the same thing I was."

Agnes Smith of Winnipeg held the ticket on Calgary and collected $27,000, which would have been the Sneddons' winnings had the Stampeders won.

Sneddon called Mrs. Smith before he took the telephone off the hook.

The money won't make too drastic a change in his life he said.

"I could pay off my debts with what I've got in the bank but it will be nice to have a home and money aside."

Tonight's Top Television Shows

CABLEVISION 10 PROGRAMS. 5 p.m., Ladies First; 6 p.m., Project Travel, Twelve of 4,000; 6:30 p.m., Canada at War, Ebbtide; 7 p.m., Victoria Outdoorsmen, Sailing Edition; 7:30 p.m., Cable Ten Forum.

HERE'S LUCY. 7 p.m., Channel 6. Rudy Vallee, the heartthrob crooner of the Twenties and Thirties, is guest star. Tonight the girls are about to transform him into a rock singer. He sings a couple of his most famous hits, including Vagabond Lover, and joins the ladies for Whiffenpoof Song, Let the Sunshine In and Winchester Cathedral.

WINNIE THE POOH AND THE BLUSTERY DAY. 7:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 5. Sequels do not generally live up to the original, but this Walt Disney follow-up on the A. A. Milne "bear of little brain" surpasses the original. In fact, in it's 1968 theatrical release, it won the "Best Cartoon Short Subject" Academy Award. The distinctive cartoon background and characters Disney created for the original Winnie are still here, but the storyline is far faster and the activity doesn't stop for a beat. Weather is the central factor, with a blustery day that knocks over the owl's home and turns into a fearsome night. A striped stranger named Tiger tell Winnie of the strange creatures that inhabit such stormy times, and in his dreams, Winnie is visited by the likes of weasel-like woozles and elephantine heffalumps. Sterling Holloway is the voice of Winnie and Sebastian Cabot narrates.

NASHVILLE NORTH. 8 p.m., Channel 8. Guests include Springhill singing sensation Anne Murray and Mike Graham, the durable folk-singing Travellers, Ian Tyson and the Great Speckled Bird. Anee sings Fire and Rain and Get Together. Tyson sings Little Beggar Man and Some Kind of Fool. The Travellers offer United We Stand.

ROWAN AND MARTIN'S LAUGH-IN. 8 p.m., Channel 5. When Lilly Tomlin as operator Ernestine asks for "Mr. Veedel," she gets the real thing. Author Gore Vidal guests and, except for that bit, one must wonder: why? There's little exceptional tonight, with the usual potpourri and several familiar reruns comprising the evening. The "new" segment is the cocktail joke such as the politican's cocktail — take two and you swear you've had only one. Arte Johnson brings the old lech back and Lily instructs a class on sex education.

MONDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 9 p.m., Channel 5. "Angel in My Pocket" (Repeat). Andy Griffith stars in a production whose fans must come from the "Mayberry" ranks. Andy is a minister with muscle as well as love and sentiment. He's an ex-Marine and brickyard worker who has turned to the ministry, taking a parsonage in a small Kansas town where he goes with his wife and three small children. Other than his own household problems, which include a meddling mother-in-law (Kay Medford) and a shiftless brother-in-law (Jerry Van Dyke), the minister must handle problems ranging from a blood feud to moonshiners and ghosts.

THE DORIS DAY SHOW. 9:30 p.m., Channel 7. Van Johnson stars as Cousin Charlie, a wandering happy soul who can't stay in one place long enough to put down any kind of root. Doris persuades him to stay a little longer than usual and, before he knows it, he has a job selling space for her magazine. Now he has the uncomfortable feeling of a root pushing down, while his blood pressure is going up.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Recently, there has been considerable discussion of the many possible uses of a new group of drugs called prostaglandins. One of the most important uses may be to induce abortion early in pregnancy, or even as a post-coital contraceptive. It can be said with certainty that prostaglandins are good for inducing abortion, and also in inducing labor when the baby is about ready to be born. In Germany, research has shown that the prostaglandins have been used successfully to induce abortion or start labor in more than 200 women. There can be troublesome side effects, such as diarrhea and vomiting.

* * *

Other possible uses for these drugs may be in treating asthma and emphysema because they have an ability to open closed airways in the lungs. They may even be good for the common cold. They may have use in ulcer control, and in lowering blood pressure.

As of now, too little is known about the drugs to begin marketing them, however, there is such tremendous interest and so much research going on regarding the drugs and their uses that doubtlessly before long much will be known about them, and they will be available widely on the market. These drugs were found in 1935, but nothing was done with them until 11 years later. Then they were neglected until 1957. Now, at last, there is much excitement about them.

Many a woman has found that she had to make great efforts to save her bed-ridden and partially paralyzed, aged parent from getting bed sores. Often the old person is heavy, and that greatly increases the danger of getting the sores. What happens is that when an area of skin has pressure on it for long hours and as a result not enough blood can circulate through the tissue, that skin can die, and an ulcer may form. I recently was astonished when I saw a calculation of the amount of weight in every square inch of the lower back of a heavy bed-ridden person, and I could then understand why bed sores can be such a problem.

* * *

Bed sores can occur also in people who are so thin that they haven't a good cushion of fat to put under their backbone. Also, their skin and the tissues under the skin in certain areas are pressed upon badly by bony prominences.

In order to avoid the development of bed sores, the bed-ridden person must be moved and turned from one side to the other at least four times a day. Also, the sheets should be kept smooth and free from any foreign material such as crumbs.

Building Firms Seek Tax Ease

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Construction Association today called on the federal government to co-ordinate its planning in construction and to ease up on taxation of the industry.

In all, the association came down with 22 major recommendations in its annual brief to the government, many of them concerning matters of finance.

The brief said the split rate of corporate income tax and heavy capital gains tax suggested in the white paper on taxation "on top of the schedule of estate and gift taxes introduced in 1969 would be particularly injurious and should not be implemented."

The brief said the estate tax should be "repealed or at least greatly modified" and suggested that all construction material and equipment be exempted from sales tax.

It also said any revision of the Unemployment Insurance Act should not include a proposed rating scheme, but should provide for a 20-week employment qualification period.

SHIPBOARD BLAZE KILLS JAILED MEN

HOLY LOCH, Scotland (AP) — Three American sailors died Sunday in a fire aboard a U.S. Navy submarine tender loaded with Polaris missiles.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said two of the victims had been under confinement in the brig of the tender Canpous and the third was a man who tried to rescue them. Ten other sailors were treated for smoke inhalation.

HOME GARDEN

Looking After Those New Plants

By HILDA BEASTALL

When delivery is made of trees and shrubs ordered from a nursery the home gardener, at this time of year, has one of two reactions. Either he is appalled at his own temerity in ordering so many and so big, and how can he ever plant them? Or he will rush and "bung them in" before the next rain storm. The ideal approach, which we rarely achieve in real life, is to have everything planned, the holes dug, the soil covered to keep it dry, stakes and ties at the ready, a wheelbarrow load of screened, partly dry compost and — a plan on paper showing where each plant is to go.

Hilda

Assuming none of us has this perfect set of conditions we have to make a decision as to how to care for these plants we wanted badly enough to order.

Remember, they are all hardy outdoor plants, presumably growing in the open nursery rows until dug for delivery to you.

They have never been indoors, nor under any shelter other than, perhaps, a lath house at the nursery. So whatever you may be thinking about the weather, don't bring these outdoor plants into the garage or basement, nor even into a concrete carport.

If some must wait a few days before planting, place them on soil or grass where wind will not blow them over. Those with balls of soil wrapped in sacking will have enough soil on their roots to prevent drying out for several days.

Trees without leaves may be bare-root and wrapped in either burlap of plastic. These should be unwrapped and have damp soil heaped over the roots.

If possible, support the trees and tall shrubs by tying to a fence or other suitable object to prevent wind damage.

Shrubs in containers of any conventional type either tin cans of fibre pots, just need standing on grass or soil until you are ready to plant. Be sure to remove the container, no matter what kind, before planting.

Should frost be indicated which might freeze the ball of soil or the soil in the containers, it is only the root area that requires protection.

Heaps of damp soil, leaves, peatmoss, sawdust, or anything that will insulate, should be used as a cover before the soil freezes. The tops of the plants, the branches and foliage, all need to be out in the moist winter air.

Look after the plants sensibly, take time to plant them well, and you'll be enjoying the results of your temerity next spring.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

It is not generally known, but one of the pledges extracted from King John at Runnymede when he finally agreed to sign the Magna Charta in 1215 A.D. was the following: all kibitzers have the right to enter into the postmortem discussion of any hand that has been misbid, misplayed, or misdefended. And further, if the mistake made is obvious to all the participants, the kibitzer has the right to criticize the errant one for his ineptitude and-or his stupidity.

In today's deal, a kibitzer made practical use of his rights by pointing out the carelessness of the South declarer in the latter's play of a slam contract. The acceptance of his criticism was unanimous.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

West's opening spade lead was captured by South's king, after which the heart queen was laid down, and the finesse taken. Upon winning with the heart king, East returned a spade to dummy's queen.

Declarer then played a heart to his jack, and this was followed by a club to dummy's king. On this latter lead, West followed suit with the club eight.

Noting the eight-spot, declarer concluded that it was an "honest" play and that, hence, it was either a singleton or it came from the J-8 doubleton. So he next led the board's queen of clubs, intending to finesse East for the jack if West failed to follow to this second club lead. And so West's jack of clubs eventually took the setting trick.

As the kibitzer correctly pointed out, declarer was careless in his play. After he had taken the losing heart finesse at trick two, and East had then returned a spade to the board's queen, declarer should have cashed his spades, hearts, and diamonds before touching clubs. Had he done this, East's hand would have become an open book.

East would have followed to three spade leads and three heart leads. West would have failed to follow to the second diamond lead, thus revealing that East had been dealt six diamonds. At most, therefore, East had one club.

The club king would be cashed next, after which a club would be led to South's ace. With East failing to follow suit, the club 10 would be led, and the marked finesse taken against West's jack. And that would be that.

Fun with figures

By J.A.H. HUNTER

Betty picked up the box. "That's it," she told them. "You've got more than your share, Bob. Give Pam two and you'll both have the same."

"But I paid more," the boy protested. "She should give me two so I would have twice what she'd have."

How many did he have?

(Answer Tuesday)

Friday's answer: Triangles. 400, 420, and 580 feet; 420, 441, and 609 feet; 580, 609, and 841 feet.

Kiwanis Seeking Used Skates

Oak Bay Kiwanis Club is appealing for used skates for Indian students at Lower Post School on the Alaska Highway just south of the Yukon border.

The school has a flood-lit ice rink, but many of the youngsters can't afford to buy skates, said Kiwanis president Jack McNeill.

Skates can be left at the Oak Bay firehall on St. Ann, or at Jiminy Crickets Kindergarten, 3410 Shelbourne.

Rally Rolls On . . .

Market action on the week's opening day gave investors renewed confidence with gains posted by the end of trading at New York, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

For New York it was the seventh successive improvement, at Toronto the sixth. Falling interest rates and lower bond yields, plus more investor confidence, were factors given credit by market watchers.

AT NEW YORK, the market continued to surge ahead on a broad front entering the seventh day of a rally that has established a recovery high by 2 p.m. Trading was active.

The previous recovery high for the Dow average was the 783.68 registered at the close of trading Oct. 7.

NYSE prices included Atlantic Richfield, up 1½ at $51½; Natomas, up 1¾ at $49⅞; Honeywell, up 1¾ at $73⅝; Sperry Rand, up 1 at $24½; Tenneco, up ⅝ to $19⅞; and Telex, up 1 at $21⅜.

AT TORONTO prices were sharply higher in moderate mid-afternoon trading.

New Benefits Set for Poor

$16 Baby Bonus After Means Test

OTTAWA (CP) — Low-income families, the aged, widows with young children and the disabled will benefit from a welfare structure shuffling proposed today.

The changes would involve spending about $1 billion more by 1973-74 than is spent now but this would be raised by taxing allowances now tax-free and by raising individual contributions to contributory programs.

The proposals came in the government white paper or income security tabled in the Commons.

Old Age Supplements Up $23.17

It also would make family allowances taxable and pay them on a sliding scale from a top of $16 a month for each child of a family with income of $4,500 or less down to $5 a month for each child of a family with $9,501 to $10,000.

For families above $10,000, there would be no payment, marking a major shift of the current family allowance system which pays up to $8 a month for each child depending on age.

This new family income security plan would take effect in September, 1971.

The 59,000-word white paper tabled by Health Minister John Munro also gave full details of higher payments to the aged which the government announced late last week.

The basic old age pension payable to everyone at age 65 rises to $80 a month, effective next Jan. 1, from the present $75, fattened this year to $79.58 by a cost-of-living bonus.

In future, it will not reflect rising living costs except for those who also receive the guaranteed income supplement.

At present 1.6 million persons receive the old age pension and 880,000 get both pension and supplement. Under the proposals, about 1.3 million will get both.

Effective in April, 1971, the supplement rises to a maximum of $55 a month from the present $31.83. A maximum two per cent escalation for cost-of-living increases takes effect April 1, 1972, for those who get both the basic old age pension and the supplement.

Other Income Limited to $24

To qualify for the maximum supplement, a single old age pensioner may have other income of no more than $24 a year. The amount of supplement declines in stages to $1 for those with other income between $1,296 and $1,320.

For married pensioners, the supplementary maximum is $47.50 where their combined other income is no more than $48. It drops to 50 cents on a sliding scale where income is between $2,256 and $2,304.

The changes affecting the aged mean that a married couple with no other income will receive a maximum of $255 a month and a single person $135 a month after April, 1971.

If the system continued unchanged, the married couple next year would have received $227.22 and the single person $113.61.

The white paper says the federal government also will give the required three year's notice this year of proposed changes in the Canada Pension Plan to raise the ceiling on which contributions are levied and, ultimately, the benefits.

The aim is to have benefits of $162 a month in 1977 by gradually raising the salary ceiling on which contributions are levied to $7,800 a year.

The current contributions are 1.8 per cent of salary between $600 and $5,300 for employees, matched by the employers. The self-employed contribute 3.6 per cent.

At current contributions rates, the pension in 1977 would be nearly $123 a month.

Boost For Disabled Pensioners

Disabled pensioners would get a boost to a top of $199 a month starting in January, 1973, from $114 under present requirements. By 1977, it would be $249 a month.

Wives of disabled pensioners would qualify for the first time —for a maximum $80 a month.

The widows pension would rise to a maximum $170 a month by 1973 from $71, and to $208 by 1977 if contributions had been made for three years at the top amount

The Canada Pension Plan changes would require sanction of two-thirds of the provinces containing two-thirds of the population. In effect, that means the consent of Quebec, Ontario and five other provinces in order to keep the separate Canada and Quebec Pension Plans compatible.

Discussion will come at next January's federal-provincial conference of welfare ministers. So will talks on a number of changes Ottawa wants made in welfare programs of the provinces to which federal money is contributed under the Canada Assistance Plan.

The white paper lists a variety of issues to be raised such as entitlement to welfare, work incentives, adequate benefits, appeals procedures, information for welfare recipients and such services as day-care, homemaker,

WE STAND OR FALL ON REFORMS — PM

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday his government will stand or fall on the reception given by the public to reforms outlined in the welfare white paper rleased today.

He said the federal government believes the country is mature enough to accept social reforms aimed at taking money from the rich to help the poor but "we could be put out of office" by an adverse reception. (See full story on Page 2.)

Dissatisfaction, he said, could come from the rich and middle-income brackets claiming too much was being taken from them while the poor could complain they weren't getting enough.

Berlin Meet Disputed

BERLIN (AP) — The West Berlin Christian Democratic party met in West Berlin today, their session disputed by the Communists and endorsed by the Western allies.

Former chancellor Kurt Georg Kiessinger, also his party's chairman in opposition, told a news conference that the presidium and parliament faction of his party had a right to meet here.

In an unprecedented trip near midnight into East Berlin, the U.S., British and French ministers in West Berlin, told the Russians it was Communist harassment of highway traffic into Berlin that raised tensions and not the Christian Democratic meeting.

Further, the Western ministers said, the East German actions concerning Berlin access jeopardized the Big Four meetings on Berlin. They resume next week.

SOVIETS PROTEST

The diplomatic exchange began when Pyotr Abrassimove, the Soviet ambassador to East Germany and Soviet representative in the Berlin talks, sent his Western counterparts a note protesting the Christian Democratic meetings.

East-West tensions in the present situation sharpened Saturday when the East Germans began harassing overland traffic to West Berlin.

This continued today, although by afternoon most border crossing points reported "normal" conditions. Truck drivers led reported having to wait as long as 10 hours for clearance.

Earlier ADN, the official East German news agency, and Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper in Moscow, reported that party and government leaders of the Soviet bloc will meet in East Berlin, probably later this week.

Plane Attacks North Vietnam Emplacement

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. fighter-bomber made another "self-defence attack on North Vietnam early today, hitting an anti-aircraft position 5½ miles north of the demilitarized zone before the gun emplacement could fire on the plane.

Informed sources said the pilot of the F-105 Thunderchief learned from his electronic detection gear that he was being tracked by ground radar and that it had begun computing the point at which to fire.

A U.S. communique said the attack was "protective reaction against an enemy radar-controlled anti-aircraft position" and that "protective reaction is the inherent right of self-defence."

It was the first U.S. air attack on North Vietnam reported in a week, since the heavy raids Nov. 21-22. In all previous air attacks on North Vietnam since the bombing halt two years ago, the United States claimed it was retaliating against attacks on American reconnaissance planes.

BROADENED PROTECTION

But after the raids last weekend, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird broadened protective reaction to include protection for pilots flying strikes against North Vietnamese supply routes through Laos to Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Doctor Faces 2 Charges In Port Alberni Court

Dr. Glen Stewart was on his way to Port Alberni this morning to face two charges in provincial court.

He is charged with possession of stolen property worth more than $50, and with failing to appear in court after being released on $2,500 cash bail for the same charge last month.

Stewart, who was in the Port Alberni area aboard his 35-foot yacht Gypsy last summer, was questioned in San Francisco by RCMP concerning the shooting death of Gordon Kralt, 23, at Pachena Bay near Bamfield.

SUITCASE

He was also questioned by RCMP about the disappearance of Mrs. Sheila Haupt, a nurse, from the Smithers area 10 months ago.

Shortly after Mrs. Haupt's disappearance a suitcase containing some of her belongings was found in the Bulkley River near Smithers.

Stewart had practised as a surgeon at the Smithers hospital and was "highly regarded" in the area, said Gary White, editor of the Smithers Interior News.

Kralt was a caretaker at the isolated Shantyman's Christian Association Bible camp some four miles south of Bamfield.

Swept by Pacific gales and with all other sounds drowned by pounding surf, the Pachena Bay area is deserted at this time of the year.

His body was found Nov. 22, three weeks after he was last seen alive.

Stewart was expected to appear in court Tuesday, but RCMP said he might appear this afternoon.

He and Italian national Maria Trigiani, 31, returned voluntarily from San Francisco Friday night after being held by United States immigration authorities. The woman is not in custody.

The two were rescued from a gas-filled motel room last week by two U.S. immigration inspectors.

FOUR TEENAGERS DIE IN BLAZE

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP) — RCMP today tentatively identified four teen-agers killed in a fire here Sunday, but said positive identification was not possible.

The dead were identified as Laurie Shanks, 14, and Bob Cantlon, 15, both of Fort Nelson, and Karen Brown, 16, and Robert Wyness, 18, both recently of Qualicum Beach on Vancouver Island.

Police said the four apparently were trapped in a duplex which Wyness was renting. The owner of the duplex, Roman List, escaped.

Neighbors who saw the flames turned in the alarm but were unable to get inside the frame building to rescue the four.

The fire ripped through the building's insulation of sawdust and woodchips and had completely destroyed the building within two hours.

Waffle Group Member in Race For New Democrat Leadership

TORONTO (CP) — James Laxer, 29, a leading member of the Waffle group of the New Democratic Party, officially announced his candidacy for the party's federal leadership by calling on English Canadians to form a new alliance with Quebec against American imperialism.

Mr. Laxer, a history lecturer at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., became the third candidate to seek the leadership at the national convention in February. Others are John Harney, former secretary of the Ontario NDP, and Ed Broadbent, member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby.

Mr. Laxer's candidacy was endorsed simultaneously Saturday by meetings across Canada of Waffle groups which support the nationalist policies of Mel Watkins, a University of Toronto economics professor.

Mr. Laxer had to leave for Kingston after his speech to the Toronto meeting to be on hand when his wife, Krista, gave birth to a boy early Sunday.

Other Waffle meetings were held in Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Quebec.

Mr. Laxer said part of the campaign against "American imperialism" would be to recognize the right of self-determination of Quebec "so that the people of Quebec can decide whether they wish to remain in a political union with us."

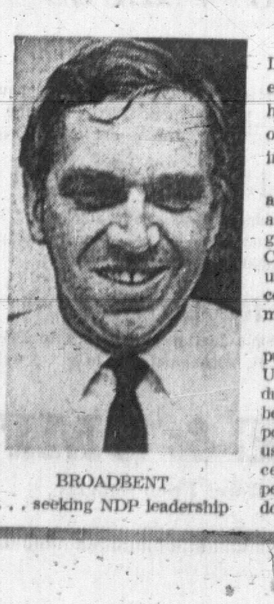
Buy All U.S. Oil Firms In Canada—Broadbent

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent, candidate for New Democratic Party leadership, said today he would, if prime minister, buy control of the petroleum industry in this country with $3 billion in U.S. funds now being held by the Bank of Canada.

Mr. Broadbent, MP for Oshawa-Whitby, spoke at a news conference to launch his book The Liberal Rip-off.

Among those fighting to succeed T. C. Douglas as NDP leader at a convention next spring, he was the first to announce his candidacy and is the first to outline his platform in a book.

Rip-off, he said, means "to deal with others on the basis of inequality." He added that is "characteristic behavior of the Liberals."



BROADBENT
. . . seeking NDP leadership

Mr. Broadbent says that Liberal and Conservative governments of the last 30 years have been adaptive but have offered no significant change in the status quo.

New Democrats had to post a clear alternative by offering a democratic socialist form of government. He believed Canadians, especially those under 35, are ready to consider seriously such a move.

There was a "clear case for public ownership" of the U.S. dominated petroleum industry in Canada, Mr. Broadbent thought it would be possible to buy control by using $3 billion held by the central bank to maintain the pegged rate of the Canadian dollar.

Nanaimo Hike Ends in Death

A Nanaimo teen-ager died of exposure overnight Saturday after being stranded with five other hikers on the snow-swept slopes of Mount Benson near Nanaimo.

Sixteen-year-old Frank Tolen was reported dead Sunday by a four-man ground party that reached the tiny cabin where the survivors had been trapped by deep snow and freezing temperatures.

A CFB Comox helicopter this morning brought out the five survivors and the search party which had stayed overnight at the cabin.

In good condition after a hospital check-up were Frank's 14-year-old brother Bill, Mike Mathews, 14, and Ron John, 15. Rick John, 16, and Jack Oud, 15, were also in good condition at home.

John and Jack had hiked out through snow and freezing temperatures to alert RCMP about the situation on Mt. Benson.

They met the combined RCMP-Civil Defence search party and returned with them to the cabin.

The six set out Saturday morning to hike the trails on the 3,344-foot mountain some seven miles from Nanaimo, police said.

DEEP SNOW

By nightfall, with temperatures hovering at 30 degrees and three-feet of snow, the youths had reached the 2,500-foot level of the mountain.

At that point Frank asked the party to leave him behind because he was tired.

The other youths got their gear to the small hunter's cabin, then returned to carry Frank up to the shelter.

It's not known whether he died before he got to the cabin where there was a fireplace.

They said rescue operations on the ground were hampered by severe conditions and treacherous roads.

The rescue party, which originally set out in a tracked snow vehicle, had to abandon it and proceed for the last mile on foot.

The survivors were all reported at home and sleeping soundly this morning.

'Nobody Asked Me'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said today the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was not informed by him about a U.S. air strike in connection with the unsuccessful Son Tay prison camp raid because nobody asked him.

Senator J. William Fulbright (D—Ark.) had accused him of "misrepresenting" facts surrounding the air attack but Laird told newsmen the committee members "were not as prepared as they might be . . . that particular question was not asked."

"I only answer the questions that are asked," he said.

Holiday Truces Set by Cong

SAIGON (Reuter) — The Viet Cong guerrillas said today they would cease fighting in South Vietnam for three days both at Christmas and New Year and for four days at Tet, the luner new year in late January.

Broadcasting from a secret jungle base, the Viet Cong's Liberation radio said its forces will observe a Christmas truce from 12:01 a.m. Dec. 24 to midnight the night of Dec. 27.

The radio said the Viet Cong will recognize a Western New Year truce from midnight Dec. 30 to midnight Jan. 3 and the Tet truce will run from midnight Jan. 26 to midnight Jan. 30.

But the broadcast made it clear that the Viet Cong would not prolong any of the truces into a permanent ceasefire because the United States has not announced a timetable for withdrawal of all its forces.

THIS $500,000 machine is the largest in Canada and among the largest in North America, capable of turning weights up to 90 tons like a giant lathe. It is a roll grinder, used to manufacture critical diameter parts for the pulp and paper industry, and is shown grinding a controlled crown roll for the press section of a machine at Quebec North Shore mill in Baie Comeau, Que. It can do high-speed turning to 1-1,000th of an inch. Plant of Berloit Sorel Walmsley Ltd. at Sorel installed machine on 2 million-pound concrete inertia block, which sits on springs.

DATA PROCESSING

Industry Seeks Freedom

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association says Canada's computer information industry should be allowed to develop on its own without undue government regulation or interference.

The association said in a brief to the federal government that data communications and data processing should be widely available at reasonable cost.

"It is our opinion that information systems have shown good development in Canada to date and that further development will be encouraged by maintaining the present competitive economic environment."

The brief was in reply to a government study on the industry tabled in the Commons in June. Communications Minister Eric Kierans said at that time he favors the entry of the common carriers—such as Bell Canada and CN-CP Telecommunications—into the computer utility field.

REQUIRES STUDY

The association did not object outright to entry of the carriers into the industry but said it required more study.

It said also that if the carriers are allowed to enter the business they should do so through subsidiary companies and any services provided to the subsidiary by the carrier should be made available to other users on the same terms and at the same price.

The CMA said more study should have been given to the possibility of developing the industry without participation of the carriers.

"It does not seem to us that a strong Canadian presence in the public data processing business necessarily rests on participation by the telecommunications carriers in data processing services. We believe there are a number of alternatives not considered . . ."

The association suggested these alternatives could include growth and expansion of existing data-processing organizations; formation of consortiums of large data-processing users; and government aid to existing and new public firms through special loans and customs regulations.

The association, which represents 8,000 manufacturers, said the data-processing industry has grown in Canada through competition and brought new services and favorable prices for users.

USERS BENEFIT

"We believe this competition will continue, and will be beneficial to the users. Therefore we see no need for regulation of data-processing services, whether these are provided by telecommunications carriers or by other organizations."

The brief also noted that the government study had raised questions about the dangers of foreign involvement in the industry.

It said it finds no strong evidence of north-south transmission as the trend in the industry, but it did agree with the desirability of encouraging east-west transmission.

It said special government research assistance to the industry to help develop systems suited especially to Canadian needs would provide "a positive program to offset the possible threat of foreign domination of application services to the detriment of Canadian cultural identity."

Japanese Steel Aim: World Leader by '75

TOKYO (Reuter) — Despite a current slowdown in production, Japan believes it can be the world's largest steel producer by 1975.

It now is the second largest, after the United States.

The Kawasaki Steel Corp., which has just introduced what it claims to be the world's largest blast furnace at its Izushima plant, expects Japan will be turning out 160 million tons of crude steel in 1975.

The industry's production plan for the current financial year has been cut from 100 million tons. But Kawasaki says this is only temporary and production next year will exceed 100 million tons.

Kawasaki's Izushima plant is typical of Japan's production expectations. It has been under construction since the mid-1960s with a target of 12 million tons capacity by 1972.

With the kindling of its No. 3 furnace, the plant is already up to eight million tons.

PLANS EXPANSION

It is built on a boot-shaped area of reclaimed land on the inland sea in southern Japan. Kawasaki plans to reclaim more land and build another two blast furnaces to give an eventual capacity of 20 million tons a year.

Kawasaki engineers say Japan now can produce about twice as much crude steel as the United States with the same basic oxygen furnace, since Japanese mills can charge the furnace twice as many times as their American counterparts.

The engineers also said they are preparing to deal with a shortage of coking coal by reducing the coke ratio — the amount of coke used for one ton of pig iron — below 992 pounds and towards 551 pounds.

They refused to say how far this had been developed because it would affect negotiations for Japanese imports of Canadian, American and Australian coking coal.

They are also engaged in sutdies on ways to use nuclear energy for steel production, although there are problems in developing heat resisting materials.

ON ADDICTION

That First Rung To the Big Hook

By Jack Scott

Ten junior high school students from Esquimalt, all or most of them having experimented with drugs, were taken by their teacher the other day to meet some real live dope addicts.

It wasn't a happy experience for a pert, attractive Nanaimo girl named Arlene who has been addicted to heroin for four years and is now valiantly trying to salvage her life.

Scott

"At first I answered their questions seriously," Arlene told a visitor yesterday, "but when I realized they were getting some laughs out of it I just gave up and let the others talk. When I told one of the young girls that it might come down to a choice between a short, unreal life or a long, happy life she laughed and said, 'I'll take the short one. I don't want to be one of those old grannies walking down the street boring myself to death.' When they'd gone I was so mad I went to my room and yelled and screamed at the walls. Their parents don't get through to them. Their teachers don't get through to them. We didn't get through to them either. They were mostly 15 years of age, just children. I'm only 19. But it was like a generation gap."

The encounter between the students and the addicts took place in a ramshackle bungalow hard by Beacon Hill Park where, some six months ago, a 53-year-old one-time alcoholic named Bill Ogston set up a kind of retreat for alcoholics and addicts who are trying to kick their habits. Ogston, a big, calm, optimistic man is without a professional background, but convinced that his effort, which goes under the name of the Pacific Drug Dependency Society, fills a need not yet met by other agencies.

It is, to say the least, a shoe-string operation. The 10 alcoholics and addicts in residence there now pay $80 monthly for room and board. All but one are on social assistance, which leaves them just $15 apiece for any other spending. They cut and sell beach driftwood as a further contribution to Ogston's perilous budget. The visitor is impressed by the congenial boarding-house atmosphere of the place and by a mood of quiet, if grim, determination, common to "the beaten, fragmented people," as someone has called the addicted, who are trying to overcome the statistical odds against rehabilitation.

Bill Ogston is inclined to think that the students got a good deal more from their visit than Arlene, who is the only woman in residence now, gives them credit for, and that the presence of their teacher might have caused them to mask their real reactions.

Certainly one impression that must remain with them is the terrifying ease with which a casual drug trip may become the long, hard road of addiction.

"When we talked of this, these kids who are smoking marijuana said, 'Oh, no it would never happen to me'. That's exactly what I said when I was 15," Arlene told the visitor. "It's so easy. You get in with some new friends, they roll up a couple, you enjoy it. Or maybe you just try it because you don't belong, you're not in the club if you don't. Sure, I liked it. I smoked for kicks at first. Then I began to depend upon it to give me confidence. I went to school high on grass nearly every morning. Couldn't talk to the teacher without it. I got to thinking that I couldn't do anything straight. One of the 15-year-old students who was in here was going through the same thing. He told us he'd brought his grade level from a D to a B by staying on grass. He wouldn't believe where it can go from there. With me, well, I just got bored with getting to that certain height when I was stoned. I began to go up the ladder, higher and higher, acid, liquor, speed, heroin. I was hooked before I knew it. That could happen to any of these kids who came to see us. They're already on the first rung."

With Gary, another of the residents, it was more or less an accident. Gary, originally from Vancouver, is 29 years of age, a former logger, a quiet-mannered, good looking man who has been addicted to heroin for 10 years and calls it a miracle that he's still alive.

"A friend asked me one day if I'd like to try marijuana," he remembers. "It was a time when it was just getting to be the thing to do, you know? We went to this guy who was supposed to have the stuff. He said, 'I'm out of grass, but how'd you like to try some horse?' Sure, we said, why not? I was hooked in a week.

"They talk about 'drug personalities', but I think anyone can be in that category once he becomes dependent. Even when I went logging I had to have the stuff with me. I used a cap a day — $20 a cap if you bought it here, $15 in Vancouver. For me, it was a way out of loneliness, a way to black out my worries and anxieties. If I was on a fix now I could sit here for hours and talk to you or anybody or I could sit alone and think about nothing. It was an escape from reality. That's the hard part now — getting back to reality. That's always the hard part."

It's unlikely that the visiting students could have missed the message, either, in Gary's account of a not uncommon experience with users of heroin.

★ ★ ★

"It was in August, 1966, in a motel in Vancouver," he recalled. "I never knew whether it was a bad dose or whether it was because I was drinking so much I didn't realize I was over-dosing myself. I've no memory of becoming unconscious. It must be what dying is like. My girl saw me turn blue and stop breathing and called a doctor. I was unconscious for three months and in the hospital for 20 months after that. My muscular system was all shot, all seized up. Couldn't move any part of my body. Couldn't speak. I'm still having operations to get back the use of my legs. I told the kids that's what can happen with heroin if it doesn't kill you. I had to tell them, too, that I was back on it even before I'd left to the hospital."

The unspeakable agonies of withdrawal are as familiar to Arlene.

"When you've run out of money or when there's no supply available, that's when you really pay the price," she said. "I can remember mornings, so many mornings, when I didn't think I could live and when I didn't really care. Not suicidal, you understand, just beyond caring. I stayed in bed once for four days, so cold I had to have about ten blankets on me, shaking, unable to sleep, unable to eat, unable to walk out to look for help, doubled up with stomach cramps. The terrible thing is that you never forget those times and yet, no matter how hard you try, you never forget the way out. Even now, it's still in my head to fix."

"That's the one thing that you can't get through to these kids," Gary said gravely, "and maybe it's the one thing that they need to know most. You can tell them the dangers, you can tell them what it will do to their lives, but you can't tell them that once you're hooked you're never really free again."

ALL ALDERMANIC SEATS CONTESTED

C. Saanich Returns Mayor

Central Saanich Mayor Archibald Galbraith was re-elected by acclamation today when nominations closed with no opposition to him.

It was the only mayoralty vacancy among the seven municipalities on southern Vancouver Island. All other mayors are in the middle of two-year terms.

Municipal and school board election day is Saturday, Dec. 12.

Aldermanic contests were assured in all municipalities except Sidney, where Ald. H. H. Perry and Ald. W. W. Gardner were re-elected without opposition.

School trustee elections were assured in Greater Victoria and Sooke.

On the Saanich Peninsula, John Pennington was returned by acclamation for the two-year seat from Saanich but John J. Armstrong and Patricia Peach will contest the one-year vacancy. In North Saanich, Ald. Trevor Davis will challenge board chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott. Zachary Hamilton won by acclamation in Central Saanich and so did Harry Tobin in Sidney.

●

In Greater Victoria, where there are five at-large vacancies on the board instead of the old ward system of voting, 12 persons are seeking seats.

The two latest entries in the Victoria city aldermanic election were former alderman Robert Baird and Charles Mowbray, a janitorial services contractor who ran unsuccessfully in last year's election.

Last entry in Saanich was John Roberts, unsuccessful when he ran last year.

In Oak Bay, R. G. McKay, Harold Allen, George Murtagh and Elmer McEwen brought the field to eight candidates for three seats.

Late filers in Esquimalt included Helen O'Mallia, Ada Barnes and John Rogers who joined three others in the election for three aldermen.

Referendums will be held in:

- Victoria, on a non-money expression of opinion on the potential purchase of $2 million of waterfront property;
- Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, for a $750,000 ice arena beside the Centennial swimming pool;

Angry, Sports-Minded Parents Ready To Make Waves in Unruffled Oak Bay

By PAT DUFOUR

A quiet anger and frustration is building up among many Oak Bay residents, particularly those with children, no longer content to live in the only Greater Victoria municipality without a recreation centre.

Determined to get some action, a group of them attended recreation commission and council meetings this month.

Some of them are unwilling to accept council's advice that the only way in which a centre can be financed is through the sale of the Victoria Riding Academy land, slated for high-rises and a minimum going price of $1.3 million.

They come up with what they believe are workable alternatives for financing.

Their pride is obviously blistered as they talk of the way in which smaller communities have achieved the goal which eludes Oak Bay.

Arch Courtnall, 2546 Dalhousie, tells of the way in which Lake Cowichan financed a $450,000 skating and curling rink, due to open within days.

"They (the residents) had been holding meetings with council for years. Nothing happened. Then a group of businessmen got together and went from door to door promoting the sale of debentures.

They sold $396,000 worth of $300 debentures guaranteed at 9¼ per cent and will mature in 10 years.

★

By raising this amount, the tax increase was held at $12 a year.

Courtnall doesn't hold council responsible.

"You'll never get it (the complex) by blaming council. It's up to the people."

Bob Dyke, 1259 Oliver, is another of those that feel other avenues of financing should be explored.

"We shouldn't be putting all our financial eggs in one basket. We must do something positive."

A resident of Oak Bay for three years, he adds: "I've never lived in an area that's been so negative."

★

Dyke coaches ice hockey in Victoria and says that more than 100 boys were turned away from the Memorial Arena last year and this year there are 63 more enrolled than rink facilities allow.

Bert Bertoia, 2382 Heron, also believes that alternative financing may be necessary. He suggests borrowing money against the Victoria Riding Academy ground. He also advocates an immediate program of gradual purchase of land needed for the centre.

"We should start beginning to buy it — bit by bit — and not wait until prices skyroket beyond reason."

They and others agree the facilities needed most are an ice rink and a swimming pool.

(Oak Bay plans to build these adjacent to Oak Bay junior and senior high schools when the money is available.)

But they also argue that the complex should include a curling rink because revenue from it would help subsidize public and figure skating, as well as minor hockey.

People in the business are divided on this.

Doug Anderson, 2976 Ashdowne, former Cougar coach and now manager of the new centre at Lake Cowichan, agrees that curling rinks are money-makers.

★

J. Iannarelli, manager of the Esquimalt Municipal Sports Centre, says they are not — and cites figures to back up his conviction. He says compared to $30,000 gained in curling fees, for the same period between $40,000 and $50,000 was realized from skating, plus an additional $30,000 netted from casual rentals when groups of youngsters and adults "chip in" to rent the ice for an hour or so at a time.

Whether curling pays — or doesn't — all agree that there is a desperate need for more skating rinks in the area.

★

Jack Morgan, director of community reaction services for Victoria, estimates that 25 per cent of the people who use the Memorial Arena and the Crystal Garden are from Oak Bay.

In round figures this means four programs that have to be subsidized to survive. In 1969, as an example, minor hockey was underwritten to the tune of $17,138, figure skating was $5,930 in the red, swimming had to be assisted by an additional $24,420 and the public school swimming program cost an additional $8,848.

In round figures thismeans that Oak Bay users' share of subsidization for these four programs was $14,084.

'SUB' OFF GROUND

After successful trials in waters off Vancouver the Canadian Armed Forces' first submersible, the SDL-1, left by Hercules aircraft for Halifax today.

Commanded by Lieut. Barry Ridgewell, the SDL-1 can be used to locate submarines in distress, inspection of underwater cables, recovery of equipment in deep water, and surveillance of the Continental Shelf.

The 25-foot vessel was built at a cost of $780,000 by International Hydrodynamics of Vancouver.

Marine Centre Pressed

Victoria will send a "strong" submission to Ottawa asking that the federal government's planned oceanographic institute be located here instead of in Vancouver, Mayor Courtney Haddock said today.

Haddock said there is "no reason at all" why the institute should go to the mainland, as suggested last week by a high federal official.

W. M. Cameron, director of the federal marine sciences branch, had said the planned institute's proximity to two universities and marine industries in Vancouver would be more important than availability to shipping in Victoria.

'NO REASON'

Haddock said the city's submission would be completed later today.

The University of Victoria's biology department has "everything needed" for cooperation with the institute, and Vancouver's two large university's are "no reason" to locate it on the mainland.

The submission, to be sent shortly, will make a "very strong case for Victoria" getting the institute, he said.

Low-Rental Opening Set

Hampton House, the 81-suite senior citizens apartment in Saanich, will be officially opened Sunday Dec. 13 by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

The low-rental building was initiated by Saanich four years ago, with the federal and provincial governments paying the $633,785 capital cost.

It is located at Hampton and Seaton, across from Hampton Park, and interested residents will be free to view the apartment on the official opening day. Time of the ceremony is 2:30 p.m.

New Benefits Set for Poor

$16 Baby Bonus After Means Test

OTTAWA (CP) — Low-income families, the aged, widows with young children and the disabled will benefit from a welfare structure shuffling proposed today.

The changes would involve spending about $1 billion more by 1973-74 than is spent now but this would be raised by taxing allowances now tax-free and by raising individual contributions to contributory programs.

The proposals came in the government white paper on income security tabled in the Commons.

Old Age Supplements Up $23.17

It also would make family allowances taxable and pay them on a sliding scale from a top of $16 a month for each child of a family with income of $4,500 or less down to $5 a month for each child of a family with $9,501 to $10,000.

For families above $10,000, there would be no payment, marking a major shift of the current family allowance system which pays up to $8 a month for each child depending on age.

This new family income security plan would take effect in September, 1971.

The 59,000-word white paper tabled by Health Minister John Munro also gave full details of higher payments to the aged which the government announced late last week.

The basic old age pension payable to everyone at age 65 rises to $80 a month, effective next Jan. 1, from the present $75, fattened this year to $79.58 by a cost-of-living bonus.

In future, it will not reflect rising living costs except for those who also receive the guaranteed income supplement.

At present 1.6 million persons receive the old age pension and 880,000 get both pension and supplement. Under the proposals, about 1.3 million will get both.

Effective in April, 1971, the supplement rises to a maximum of $55 a month from the present $31.83. A maximum two per cent escalation for cost-of-living increases takes effect April 1, 1972, for those who get both the basic old age pension and the supplement.

Other Income Limited to $24

To qualify for the maximum supplement, a single old age pensioner may have other income of no more than $24 a year. The amount of supplement declines in stages to $1 for those with other income between $1,296 and $1,320.

For married pensioners, the supplementary maximum is $47.50 where their combined other income is no more than $48. It drops to 50 cents on a sliding scale where income is between $2,256 and $2,304.

The changes affecting the aged mean that a married couple with no other income will receive a maximum of $255 a month and a single person $135 a month after April, 1971.

If the system continued unchanged, the married couple next year would have received $227.22 and the single person $113.61.

The white paper says the federal government also will give the required three years' notice this year of proposed changes in the Canada Pension Plan to raise the ceiling on which contributions are levied and, ultimately, the benefits.

The aim is to have benefits of $162 a month in 1977 by gradually raising the salary ceiling on which contributions are levied to $7,800 a year.

The current contributions are 1.8 per cent of salary between $600 and $5,300 for employees, matched by the employers. The self-employed contribute 3.6 per cent.

At current contributions rates, the pension in 1977 would be nearly $123 a month.

Boost For Disabled Pensioners

Disabled pensioners would get a boost to a top of $199 a month starting in January, 1973, from $114 under present requirements. By 1977, it would be $249 a month.

Wives of disabled pensioners would qualify for the first time —for a maximum $80 a month.

The widows pension would rise to a maximum $170 a month by 1973 from $71, and to $208 by 1977 if contributions had been made for three years at the top amount.

The Canada Pension Plan changes would require sanction of two-thirds of the provinces containing two-thirds of the population. In effect, that means the consent of Quebec, Ontario and five other provinces in order to keep the separate Canada and Quebec Pension Plans compatible.

Discussion will come at next January's federal-provincial conference of welfare ministers. So will talks on a number of changes Ottawa wants made in welfare programs of the provinces to which federal money is contributed under the Canada Assistance Plan.

The white paper lists a variety of issues to be raised such as entitlement to welfare, work incentives, adequate benefits, appeals procedures, information for welfare recipients and such services as day-care, homemaker,

WE STAND OR FALL ON REFORMS — PM

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday his government will stand or fall on the reception given by the public to reforms outlined in the welfare white paper released today.

He said the federal government believes the country is mature enough to accept social reforms aimed at taking money from the rich to help the poor but "we could be put out of office" by an adverse reception. (See full story on Page 2.)

Dissatisfaction, he said, could come from the rich and middle-income brackets claiming too much was being taken from them while the poor could complain they weren't getting enough.

Berlin Meet Disputed

BERLIN (AP) — The West Berlin Christian Democratic party met in West Berlin today, their session disputed by the Communists and endorsed by the Western allies.

Former chancellor Kurt Georg Kiessinger, also his party's chairman in opposition, told a news conference that the presidium and parliament faction of his party had a right to meet here.

In an unprecedented trip near midnight into East Berlin, the U.S., British and French ministers in West Berlin, told the Russians it was Communist harassment of highway traffic into Berlin that raised tensions and not the Christian Democratic meeting.

Further, the Western ministers said, the East German actions concerning Berlin access jeopardized the Big Four meetings on Berlin. They resume next week.

SOVIETS PROTEST

The diplomatic exchange began when Pyotr Abrassimove, the Soviet ambassador to East Germany and Soviet representative in the Berlin talks, sent his Western counterparts a note protesting the Christian Democratic meetings.

East-West tensions in the present situation sharpened Saturday when the East Germans began harassing overland traffic to West Berlin.

This continued today, although by afternoon most border crossing points reported "normal" conditions. Truck drivers led reported having to wait as long as 10 hours for clearance.

Earlier ADN, the official East German news agency, and Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper in Moscow, reported that party and government leaders of the Soviet bloc will meet in East Berlin, probably later this week.

Doctor Faces 2 Charges In Port Alberni Court

Dr. Glen Stewart was on his way to Port Alberni this morning to face two charges in provincial court.

He is charged with possession of stolen property worth more than $50, and with failing to appear in court after being released on $2,500 cash bail for the same charge last month.

Stewart, who was in the Port Alberni area aboard his 35-foot yacht Gypsy last summer, was questioned in San Francisco by RCMP concerning the shooting death of Gordon Kralt, 23, at Pachena Bay near Bamfield.

SUITCASE

He was also questioned by RCMP about the disappearance of Mrs. Sheila Haupt, a nurse, from the Smithers area 10 months ago.

Shortly after Mrs. Haupt's disappearance a suitcase containing some of her belongings was found in the Bulkley River near Smithers.

Stewart had practised as a surgeon at the Smithers hospital and was "highly regarded" in the area, said Gary White, editor of the Smithers Interior News.

Kralt was a caretaker at the isolated Shantyman's Christian Association Bible camp some four miles south of Bamfield.

Swept by Pacific gales and with all other sounds drowned by pounding surf, the Pachena Bay area is deserted at this time of the year.

His body was found Nov. 22, three weeks after he was last seen alive.

Stewart was expected to appear in court Tuesday, but RCMP said he might appear this afternoon.

He and Italian national Maria Trigiani, 31, returned voluntarily from San Francisco Friday night after being held by United States immigration authorities. The woman is not in custody.

The two were rescued from a gas-filled motel room last week by two U.S. immigration inspectors.

FOUR TEENAGERS DIE IN BLAZE

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP) — RCMP today tentatively identified four teen-agers killed in a fire here Sunday, but said positive identification was not possible.

The dead were identified as Laurie Shanks, 14, and Bob Cantion, 15, both of Fort Nelson, and Karen Brown, 16, and Robert Wyness, 18, both recently of Qualicum Beach on Vancouver Island.

Police said the four apparently were trapped in a duplex which Wyness was renting. The owner of the duplex, Roman List, escaped.

Neighbors who saw the flames turned in the alarm but were unable to get inside the frame building to rescue the four.

The fire ripped through the building's insulation of sawdust and woodchips and had completely destroyed the building within two hours.

Nanaimo Hike Ends in Death

A Nanaimo teen-ager died of exposure overnight Saturday after being stranded with five other hikers on the snow-swept slopes of Mount Benson near Nanaimo.

Sixteen-year-old Frank Tolen was reported dead Sunday by a four-man ground party that reached the tiny cabin where the survivors had been trapped by deep snow and freezing temperatures.

A CFB Comox helicopter this morning brought out the five survivors and the search party which had stayed overnight at the cabin.

In good condition after a hospital check-up were Frank's 14-year-old brother Bill, Mike Mathews, 14, and Ron John, 15, Rick John, 16, and Jack Oud, 15, were also in good condition at home.

John and Jack had hiked out through snow and freezing temperatures to alert RCMP about the situation on Mt. Benson.

They met the combined RCMP-Civil Defence search party and returned with them to the cabin.

The six set out Saturday morning to hike the trails on the 3,344-foot mountain some seven miles from Nanaimo, police said.

DEEP SNOW

By nightfall, with temperatures hovering at 30 degrees and three-feet of snow, the youths had reached the 2,500-foot level of the mountain.

At that point Frank asked the party to leave him behind because he was tired.

The other youths got their gear to the small hunter's cabin, then returned to carry Frank up to the shelter.

It's not known whether he died before he got to the cabin where there was a fireplace.

They said rescue operations on the ground were hampered by severe conditions and treacherous roads.

The rescue party, which originally set out in a tracked snow vehicle, had to abandon it and proceed for the last mile on foot.

The survivors were all reported at home and sleeping soundly this morning.

LAIRD
. . . misrepresentation?

'Nobody Asked Me'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said today the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was not informed by him about a U.S. air strike in connection with the unsuccessful Son Tay prison camp raid because nobody asked him.

Senator J. William Fulbright (D—Ark.) had accused him of "misrepresenting" facts surrounding the air attack but Laird told newsmen the committee members "were not as prepared as they might be . . . that particular question was not asked."

"I only answer the questions that are asked," he said.

Plane Attacks North Vietnam Emplacement

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. fighter-bomber made another "self-defence" attack on North Vietnam early today, hitting an anti-aircraft position 5½ miles north of the demilitarized zone before the gun emplacement could fire on the plane.

Informed sources said the pilot of the F-105 Thunderchief learned from his electronic detection gear that he was being tracked by ground radar and that it had begun computing the point at which to fire.

A U.S. communique said the attack was "protective reaction against an enemy radar-controlled anti-aircraft position" and that "protective reaction is the inherent right of self-defence."

Tit For Tat, Says Sharp

LONDON (UPI) — The United States has only itself to blame for Canada's policy of providing haven for Americans fleeing military service, said External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp today.

"One of the reasons we adopted this policy was that we looked back to see what the United States had done during the period 1939-1941 when we were at war and they were not," Sharp said in in interview with the British Broadcasting Corp.

"We found the Americans had accepted deserters from the Canadian army without question," he said.

Waffle Group Member in Race For New Democrat Leadership

TORONTO (CP) — James Laxer, 29, a leading member of the Waffle group of the New Democratic Party, officially announced his candidacy for the party's federal leadership by calling on English Canadians to form a new alliance with Quebec against American imperialism.

Mr. Laxer, a history lecturer at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., became the third candidate to seek the leadership at the national convention in February. Others are John Harney, former secretary of the Ontario NDP, and Ed Broadbent, member of Parliament for Oshawa-Whitby.

Mr. Laxer's candidacy was endorsed simultaneously Saturday by meetings across Canada of Waffle groups which support the nationalist policies of Mel Watkins, a University of Toronto economics professor.

Mr. Laxer had to leave for Kingston after his speech to the Toronto meeting to be on hand when his wife, Krista, gave birth to a boy early Sunday.

Other Waffle meetings were held in Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Quebec.

Mr. Laxer said part of the campaign against "American imperialism" would be to recognize the right of self-determination of Quebec "so that the people of Quebec can decide whether they wish to remain in a political union with us."

Buy All U.S. Oil Firms In Canada—Broadbent

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent, candidate for New Democratic Party leadership, said today he would, if prime minister, buy control of the petroleum industry in this country with $3 billion in U.S. funds now being held by the Bank of Canada.

Mr. Broadbent, MP for Oshawa-Whitby, spoke at a news conference to launch his book The Liberal Rip-off.

Among those fighting to succeed T. C. Douglas as NDP leader at a convention next spring, he was the first to announce his candidacy and is the first to outline his platform in a book.

Rip-off, he said, means "to deal with others on the basis of inequality." He added that is "characteristic behavior of the Liberals."

Mr. Broadbent says that Liberal and Conservative governments of the last 30 years have been adaptive but have offered no significant change in the status quo.

New Democrats had to post a clear alternative by offering a democratic socialist form of government. He believed Canadians, especially those under 35, are ready to consider seriously such a move.

There was a "clear case for public ownership" of the U.S. dominated petroleum industry in Canada, Mr. Broadbent thought it would be possible to buy control by using $3 billion held by the central bank to maintain the pegged rate of the Canadian dollar.

Holiday Truces Set by Cong

SAIGON (Reuter) — The Viet Cong guerrillas said today they would cease fighting in South Vietnam for three days both at Christmas and New Year and for four days at Tet, the lunar new year in late January.

Broadcasting from a secret jungle base, the Viet Cong's Liberation radio said its forces will observe a Christmas truce from 12:01 a.m. Dec. 24 to midnight the night of Dec. 27.

Tha radio said the Viet Cong will recognize a Western New Year truce from midnight Dec. 30 to midnight Jan. 3 and the Tet truce will run from midnight Jan. 26 to midnight Jan. 30.

But the broadcast made it clear that the Viet Cong would not prolong any of the truces into a permanent ceasefire because the United States has not announced a timetable for withdrawal of all its forces.
